Introduction

Welcome to Roll & Play: The Fantasy Character Kit!

Whether you're a player crafting a character for your next adventure, or a game master who loves creating amazing NPCs to fill their world, playing tabletop role-playing games gives you freedom to take on a new identity that will exist within a reality of its own. Within these pages you will find hundreds of random tables to help you generate exciting backstories, personalities, weapons and armour, locations, trinkets and so much more.

The book is divided into chapters for each of the common character classes, so content is easy to find, but you can also flip to other sections throughout the book that best suit your character. As sessions pass and your character develops, you can use this book as inspiration for their new skills, motivations, connections, items or accessories that they acquire along the way – the possibilities are endless, and I hope you have fun rolling and generating awesome new characters and NPCs!

All the best for the adventures ahead,

Sam

Using This Book

The concept is simple, when creating a new character, follow these five steps:

1. Go to the tables or chapter you need

2. Roll the indicated dice on a range of tables

3. Look up the outcomes and note them down

4. Write your character's backstory based on your results

5. Fill out your RPG character sheet

And that's it! You will have just produced a detailed character with an imaginative backstory, appearance, personality and equipment. Of course you can use the tables as a spark to ignite your own creativity, adding to or adapting anything in the book with your own unique ideas!

Fantasy Races

The fantasy genre is populated by a limitless array of remarkable species for you to embody on the tabletop. The list featured here is a sample of the many options that may be available in your game, depending on the setting, and includes common biological descriptions and habitats to help you visualise your character and launch yourself into immersive role-play.

Dwarf

Dwarves are short and stout; because of their mining history, their kingdoms are often hidden deep within mountains.

4-5 feet tall Lifespan: ~350
100-200lbs Size: Medium

Elf

Elves can live for centuries, and often dwell in forest villages. They are recognised by their pointed ears and bright eyes.

5-6 feet tall Lifespan: ~750
100-200lbs Size: Medium

Gnome

Gnomes are known for their petite stature and expressive hairstyles. They normally inhabit homely burrows concealed by illusions.

3-4 feet tall Lifespan: ~500
30-50lbs Size: Small

Half-Elf

These individuals have both elven and human heritage, and tend to have the metallic-coloured eyes of their elven parents.

5-6 feet tall Lifespan: ~200
100-250lbs Size: Medium

Halfling

Halflings are human-like and small, and often walk barefoot on their hairy feet. They typically live in scenic farms and villages.

3-4 feet tall Lifespan: ~150
30-50lbs Size: Small

Human

Settlements inhabited by humans can be found in almost any part of the world. Humans are one of the most physically diverse races.

5-6 feet tall Lifespan: ~85
150-250lbs Size: Medium

Aasimar

These angelic beings originate from heavenly realms. They have a radiant shimmer to their skin and soft halos above their heads.

5-6 feet tall Lifespan: ~160
150-250lbs Size: Medium

Dragonborn

Distantly related to dragons, this reptilian race are bulky, scaly and tall. Their breath can be utilised as a powerful weapon.

6-7 feet tall Lifespan: ~80
250-400lbs Size: Medium

Genasi

Each genasi is born with a link to the plane of fire, water, air or earth; this connection is evident in their appearance.

5-6 feet tall Lifespan: ~120
150-250lbs Size: Medium

Goliath

Goliaths have the physiology to survive in the frigid mountains they call home. It is believed they are the descendants of giants.

7-8 feet tall Lifespan: ~100
300-400lbs Size: Medium

Half-Orc

The half-orc race have orcish and human lineage. They often have prominent orcish features, such as short tusks.

6-7 feet tall Lifespan: ~75
200-300lbs Size: Medium

Satyr

Satyrs have the top half of a human with the horns, tail and furry legs of a goat. They originate from the wilds of the fey realm.

5-6 feet tall Lifespan: ~85
150-250lbs Size: Medium

Tabaxi

This race are cat-like humanoids with sharp claws and short fur. Similar to feline creatures, their markings can vary broadly.

6-7 feet tall Lifespan: ~85
100-250lbs Size: Medium

Tiefling

Fiendish blood runs in this race's veins, manifesting as sharp horns, lashing tails, pointed teeth and vibrantly hued skin.

5-6 feet tall Lifespan: ~90
150-250lbs Size: Medium

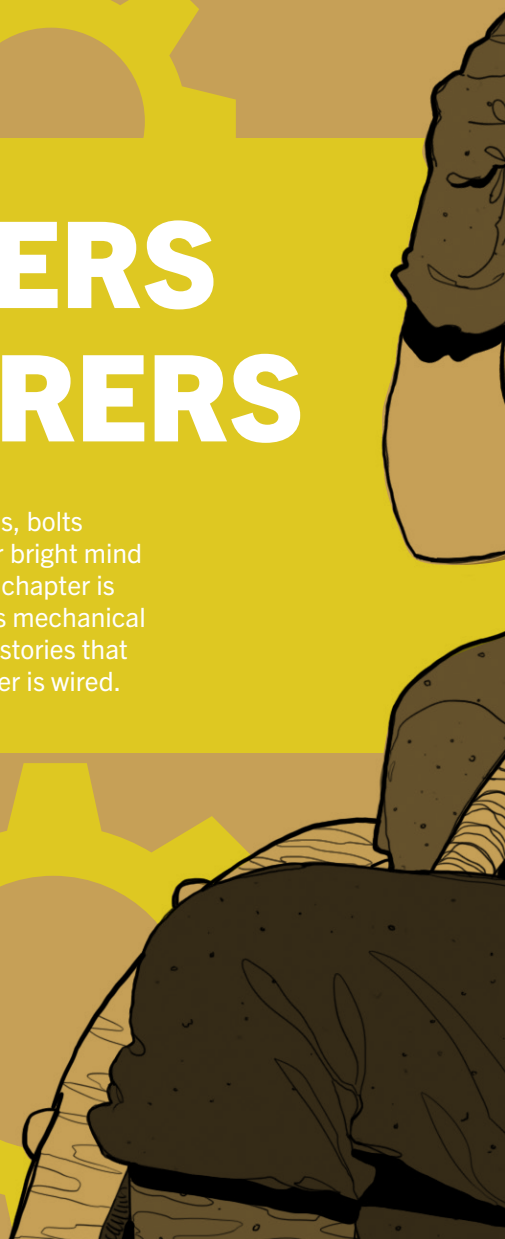
ARTIFICERS & TINKERERS

Your satchel is full of spanners, chemicals, bolts and screws; there's no problem that your bright mind and kooky contraptions can't solve! This chapter is full of useful gadgets and tools, as well as mechanical helpers, workshops, weapons and origin stories that help to shine a light on how your character is wired.



Randall Portoni - rportoni@yahoo.com

Randall Portoni - rportoni@yahoo.com

Backstory Inspiration

Use the tables in this book to create imaginative characters with unique backstories, inspired by the locations and lore within your game's setting. You can use this artificer's description as inspiration for your own, a guide to structuring backstories, or a fully-usable character for your next game!

Elpikir de Foir

The elves of the Neverglade have perfected the use of technology (or "new magic") to more efficiently perform their daily tasks. The young and ever-inquisitive Elpikir de Foir is no different – she adores tinkering and brewing potions. Most of her experiments are powered by voltcrows, birds whose oily feathers serve as an excellent catalyst for potion synthesis.

Her face is often streaked with black grease from one of her hastily assembled inventions, and she wears a long, burlap apron over the top of her dark-red armour. Her current base of operations is a small chapel in the Neverglade – it was once devoted to the old magic, but is now a workshop with drawers full of equipment that reach the ceiling, and a mechanical elevator that makes sure no tool is out of reach.

Elpikir is very close to perfecting her secret formula for 'Super Syrup', a condiment that can make vegetables taste like candy floss, but she needs more voltcrow feathers to experiment further. Until she can sell it on for profit, she must keep her formula safe and hidden away from anyone who might look to steal her recipe.

Elpikir's sister, Beatriss de Foir (also a keen inventor), looks after the workshop when Elpikir goes on the hunt for voltcrow feathers. Before she left on her recent excursion to follow the birds' migration path, her sister built her a mechanical calendar, so she would know exactly how long she had been gone for and when to return to the Neverglade. Along with the calendar, Beatriss also built FR3D – a miniature, humanoid, helper robot who could carry things for Elpikir, take notes, and pick up any shiny baubles on her journey.

The words in bold are parts of the backstory taken from the random tables within this book.

Origins and Goals

This table generates past events in your character's life, and determines what motivated them to choose their adventuring path. You can use each entry as it is, or to inspire a brand new story!

Why did you become an adventurer?

1. You study Alchemical Mechanics as an exchange student in a famous university, and are top of your class. To complete your degree you must finish a practical exam in Adventuring Skills.
2. You once helped your old mentor with a questionable and illegal science project. When they were investigated, they framed you and fled; you now hope to clear your name before your judgement date.
3. When your beloved pet was ill with 'earflops', you researched all kinds of healing remedies until you found a cure. A king's pet famously suffers from the same illness, so you hope to travel to them and give their pet your medicine.
4. Your future self travelled back in time to give you schematics that could help to balance an ecosystem which collapses in fifty years. You are working to prevent the issue, and make the future a better place.
5. Your grandma ran a fireworks shop and recently passed it on to you. You have renovated it and the grand opening is just around the corner. You're gathering colourful explosives from across the land to create a stunning launch ceremony.
6. You spent years travelling the world seeking out the finest foods. When tinkering with your new taste modulator invention, it backfired and altered your height; you are looking for a way to undo this.
7. Your village was plagued by wolves, so you designed and created a security system. You also built prosthetic limbs for villagers who were injured in the battles, and now you feel led to help others in this way.
8. You discovered that voltcrow feathers make great catalysts for potion brewing. Knowing this, you have been working on a secret formula that is almost ready, you just need some more feathers.

Appearance and Items

Distinctive features

1. Your face is often streaked with black grease or oil.
2. You always have at least one bandaged injury or burn somewhere on your body.
3. Your ear lobes are stretched by two large screws.
4. Exposure to harsh chemicals has given you a chesty cough.
5. The iron and silver filings stuck to your skin give it an interesting shimmer.
6. Pots, pans, vials and bottles hang from hooks on your waist and clank as you walk.
7. You have tattoos of your best formulas across your arms.
8. The welding mask over your face is very rarely removed.
9. Your vocal chords no longer work, but a mechanical device lets you speak.
10. With wheels in your boots you glide and pivot around.

1d10

Protective gear

1. Patchwork armour that has been riveted together badly.
2. Oversized bandolier; holds vials full of alchemical creations, as well as pouches of materials.
3. Thick, tan overalls covered in streaks where messy hands or tools have been wiped clean.
4. A long burlap apron rests across your dark red armour.
5. Fitted battle suit with flashing lights, valves and moving dials.
6. Lightweight leather armour, weighed down by two massive steel pauldrons.
7. A lengthy, wrap-around cloak covers your body and legs, as well as part of your face.
8. Over your armour, you wear a white lab coat covered in blots.
9. Steel helmet and breastplate combination joined with wires.
10. Leather armour with many zips for utmost adaptability.

1d10

Randall Portoni - rportoni@yahoo.com

Handy weapons

1. Shortsword with a curved handle and a saw-like blade.
2. Steel crossbow with coiled springs and wires, fires sharp nails. Great for carpentry.
3. Makeshift, wooden mace with a hefty metal ingot at its head.
4. Iron golem's riveted leg that can be swung as a greatclub.
5. Redwood shortbow that fires home-made, steel aerials.
6. Wrist-mounted crossbow with hinged arms, so it can be easily folded into a bracer.
7. Brushed-bronze cog that has been converted into a sickle.
8. Wooden spear; its sharp tip is taken from a dungeon trap.
9. Set of four sharp screwdrivers that can double-up as daggers.
10. Light hammer; has a clawed side for pulling up nails.

1d10

Tools and trinkets

1. Mechanical, ticking calendar.
2. Pocketwatch with six faces.
3. Long, mercury thermometer.
4. Chunky, iron-tipped pliers.
5. Pot of jingleberry jam.
6. Red and green food colouring.
7. Pouch of gelatin cubes.
8. Set of dice made from stone.
9. Spirit level full of green liquid.
10. Tube of sticky adhesive.

1d10

Instruction manuals

1. Apprentice's Guide to Glue
2. Intricate Elven Anatomy
3. Screw, Nail, Rivet or Twine?
4. Extracting Weasel Essence
5. Forges, Furnaces and Fire
6. Expert Level Enchanting
7. My First Heavy Artillery
8. Joinery For Journeymen
9. Twenty Ways With Solder
10. The Homunculus Handbook

1d10

Wild inventor or master artisan?

Role-playing your character's scientific competency (or lack thereof) can help bring them to life. Comedic or serious moments can be heightened further by appearances, are they covered in soot with their hair upright after a recent backfire? Or, is their outfit as refined as their knowledge of alchemy?

Randall Portoni - rportoni@yahoo.com

Magical Equipment

Mechanical magic weapons

1. Grimy pistol that belches out tar, sticking together foes and slowing them down.
2. Dagger that can heat up and act like a soldering iron.
3. Steel spear with a secret compartment that stores a never ending supply of darts.
4. Crossbow bolts that split into three before striking an enemy.
5. Electrically charged darts that can stun a foe on impact.
6. Jade javelin; ricochets after striking, hitting others nearby.
7. Purple crossbow that fires hypnotic sleep rays.
8. Two daggers that, when brought together, create an explosive arc of lightning.
9. Rainbow hammer that charges other weapons with vivid light.
10. Mace with a head made from thick cables; can overcharge mechanical constructs.

1d10

Gadgets and magic items

1. Bracelet filled with thick, grey sludge that sets into rock-hard concrete in 1d4 hours.
2. Small, iron rod that informs the user of the material it touches.
3. Tongue piercing that glows green if it touches poison.
4. Breastplate made from a giant scorpion's shell that grants resistance to poison damage.
5. Onyx ring; makes its owner's weight six times greater.
6. Chattering, mechanical teeth that can relay a short message.
7. Single-use, blue crystal that can be used in place of any crafting component.
8. White, steel lantern that stores unstable electrical power.
9. Old copper coin that can act as a bright flare when thrown.
10. Steampunk bracers with small gas canisters that can pump out opaque smoke.

Tinkerer Spellcasting

Although artificers are spellcasters, their spells often appear more scientific than magical. Roll on the table below to see how your artificer uses magic, and how you can represent this on the tabletop.

To fire off spells, you...

1. mix together selected vials, then throw them at your target.
2. use the implant in your head to manifest your thoughts.
3. adjust the dials on your arcane blaster, and pull the trigger.
4. use verbal and material components and cast spells similar to an educated wizard.
5. initiate your mechanical helper who is equipped with a series of weapons and tools.
6. type on a wrist-mounted keyboard, hacking into the code of the universe.
7. throw one of your specially designed and colour-coded 'reality bombs'.
8. hold up an overcharged meteorite and blast alien magic towards your target.
9. enchant nearby stones and throw them at your enemies.
10. turn invisible nuts and bolts with your magic wrench and tinker with the makeup of the material world.
11. twist your monocle to launch a magic beam from your eye.
12. drink from a beaker in your bag and breathe out a particular kind of flame.
13. click one of the gem buttons on your remote control and fire a beam of energy.
14. release some stored cosmic radiation from the sizable brass canister on your back.
15. grind up ingredients in a pestle and mortar, then throw the results at your foe.
16. shoot unrefined energy harvested from dreams using your SnoozeCannon2000.
17. launch raw emotional power from a weapon embedded in the centre of your heart.
18. release thousands of clockwork nanobots from a hive located in your hat.
19. read from your collection of arcane scrolls and tomes.
20. activate a magical prism and shoot light rays at your target.

Wonderful Workshops

1. Several pools of wax sit on the uneven wooden flooring beneath a candle chandelier in this well-used, untidy laboratory. Papers cover every surface and frayed curtains frame the windows.

2. Stained-glass windows dominate the northern side of this converted chapel and add an eerie blue glow to the interior. Neatly organised boxes full of bolts, books and arcane equipment reach the high ceiling and can be accessed by a mechanical elevator.

3. At the back of a busy stable is a small workshop hidden behind a tattered wooden door. Chains hang from its ceiling, holding up pieces of armour and machinery with large hooks. Three circular windows reveal a pleasant view of the grazing horses outside.

4. An ornate forge in the shape of a dragon's mouth heats up metal and belches thick humidity into this small, dark, austerely decorated workshop. Hammers are patiently waiting on the room's mighty anvil.

5. Copper sewer pipes with dials and valves puncture the walls of this underground laboratory. Recent mechanical tests and experiments bubble in cylindrical vats of water and oil. Bookshelves cover the walls, and in the corner is a desk covered in well-drawn schematics.

6. Crashing waves are constant background noise in this modified lighthouse lab. Ships may think that the lighthouse is still in use, but any light emitted is a product of the arcane experiments within.

7. A mechanical intercom and sliding doors give this steel-plated workshop a futuristic feel. Mannequins neatly line the left side, fitted with conceptual armour and weapons not yet ready for use.

8. A domed glass ceiling displays an impressive view of the night sky above this cluttered lab. Telescopes, star maps and wrenches lie on the floor, and the smoky smell of warm solder hangs in the air.

Randall Portoni - rportoni@yahoo.com

Mechanical Helpers

Some artificers employ the help of a clockwork creation to aid them with their tasks. These helpers can be scientific assistants to help out during experiments, or a steel defender to support the artificer on the battlefield.

Automated assistants

1. Golden, clockwork spider that produces its own synthesised web fluid. Despite its many legs, it is programmed to take care of only one task at a time.
2. Motorised racing cart with room to hold supplies. It never stays still for very long and loves to drive in circles.
3. Miniature humanoid robot covered in silver coins, spoons and knick-knacks. It is always scanning for new trinkets and enjoys gluing them to its body.
4. Floating squid with wire tentacles. It hides people's possessions to study the variety in human reactions.
5. Cauldron with metallic arms and legs; as soon as it enters a new room, it begins looking for components that might be useful for future experiments.
6. Oversized toolbox on clunky tank tracks, with an in-built cleaning function. Despite the puddles and muck it drives through, it is rarely dirty.
7. Bright yellow dragon drone, normally found buzzing near its creator because it gets very scared in dangerous situations.
8. Metal-plated centipede that isn't afraid to use it's fully charged energy weapons to zap people who talk badly about its owner.
9. Iron crab with a storage chest on its back; it likes to calculate coin revenue and party combat efficiency.
10. Silver owl whose eyes are bright blue crystals and its beak solid gold. It is sent commands from its creator by telepathic signals.
11. Drifting, rotating cube that has many compartments. It most enjoys taking on menial and repetitive tasks such as tidying or counting.
12. Robotic possum, often calls to and grunts at its creator. It can cause explosions when it mixes together components to satisfy its own curiosity.

Party Relationships

By forging connections with the rest of your adventuring party, you can electrify your interactions and spark new role-play opportunities! Roll on the table below, and enter another adventurer's name in the blank.

Character connections

1. _____ is always rescuing you from explosions caused by your experiments.
2. _____ has an item you require for a project, hopefully they'll give it to you soon.
3. _____ volunteered as your test subject, so you owe them.
4. You lost _____'s trust after you gave them a potion that didn't have the desired effect.
5. You're fascinated by _____ and continue to study them.
6. _____ seems intelligent, so you're hoping they will help you solve an alchemical issue.
7. _____'s objective will bring you closer to getting your hands on a valuable resource.
8. _____ has invested in you, you will help them as long as they buy ingredients for you.
9. The fights that _____ gets into are the perfect place to test out your new experiments.
10. You blew up _____'s pet, but they don't know that yet.
11. _____ is probably the only one strong enough to use your secret project.
12. You like making things that bring _____ joy.
13. _____ reminds you of a famous scientist you once read about in a journal.
14. _____ is scared of loud explosions, this amuses you.
15. You recently experimented on _____'s rations, and are waiting to see the effects.
16. You did _____ a huge favour recently, and you remind them about it often.
17. You designed _____'s armour for them, and you both agree it looks great.
18. _____ borrowed a glass vial, but never gave it back.
19. You're both impressed and slightly jealous of _____'s extraordinary abilities.
20. You're trying to find the right time to give _____ the item you built them.

Friends and Enemies

Roll on the tables below to add intelligent inventors to your character's story. Are they a professor who taught them everything they know about the elements? Or, are they all too often a wrench in your character's plans?

Ingenious engineers

1. Alphons Sculli – Pushes moral limits with their illicit creations.
2. Konig Izzlewig – Sometimes experiments on themselves, jumpy and unpredictable.
3. Kwin Evergone – Considers themselves the greatest of all alchemists. Wears silk robes.
4. Deeb Amorafel – Once part of a shady weapons organisation, now avoids tinkering to lay low.
5. Kuruk Gruv – Responsible for an amazing robotic discovery.
6. Pin Kanabi – A keen scientific mind, but mediocre alchemist. Sports a sequinned top hat.
7. Beatriss de Foir – Wears a portable workbench to build new contraptions on the go.

Backstory Inspiration

Use the tables in this book to create imaginative characters with unique backstories, inspired by the locations and lore within your game's setting. You can use this barbarian's description as inspiration for your own, a guide to structuring backstories, or a fully-usable character for your next game!

Miranda Valdueza

Miranda grew up in the small coastal town of Whaleport, where she used to sit on the dock and fish for carp with her homemade, feathered lures. Her home life in Whaleport's slums was difficult at best, and she often got into trouble because of her fiery personality, or for stealing food.

In her late teens, she began working in the slums' local tavern, The Crooked Crow, to earn some coin. In the evenings, unregulated brawls were hosted in the dingy courtyard between local residents or sailors who were stopping over. The winnings could be high for those who won, which was incentive enough for her to give it a go.

Untrained, she lost her first few fights badly, but that didn't put her off. She kept working hard, and after a long and painful road, she finally won The Crooked Crow's tournament. Witnessing the raw power that Miranda possessed, a woman named Mera Hawksblood's interest was piqued. She ran a mercenary gang called The Howling Jaws who stole artefacts from tombs and sold them on for hefty profits. With a salary of gold pieces guaranteed, Miranda signed up and left Whaleport in no time.

She fought alongside The Howling Jaws for years and earned a small fortune – her talents shone and the group became both illustrious and notorious. This success bred jealousy, however, and one night Miranda was double-crossed by her own comrades; Mera defended her protégé fiercely, but was ultimately killed. Miranda fled, taking the long, hyena-hide cloak from her mentor's body, and swore that one day she would find and defeat each member of The Howling Jaws to prove to them that she was the ultimate warrior.

The words in bold are parts of the backstory taken from the random tables within this book.

Origins and Goals

This table generates past events in your character's life, and determines what motivated them to choose their adventuring path. You can use each entry as it is, or to inspire a brand new story!

Why did you become an adventurer?

1. You were raised as a warrior in a rival tribe. When you came home, your family rejected you, as they blamed the rival tribe for a terrible attack on your village. You are seeking the true perpetrators.
2. Venturing out from your small town, you made a fortune by fighting in a battle arena and completing contracts for a warriors' guild. You are now planning to challenge each member of the guild to prove you're the ultimate warrior!
3. Episodes of uncontrollable 'wolf rage' you displayed as a child got you cast out into the desert. You are searching to find the hidden tomb of your ancestors to learn more about this fury in your bones.
4. You were briefly your tribe's leader, but were demoted after changing some key laws. Some said your changes were 'as useful as a chocolate teapot', so you are now looking for this valuable and useful artefact.
5. A tavern owner adopted you. In adulthood, you acted as the venue's security, but loved listening to the inn's resident bards. Your biggest dream is to have an epic poem written about you one day.
6. You were a wizard's unwilling test subject, and were placed in extensive rage trials for ten years. After escaping, your mission now is to find peace travelling to see all the rare and beautiful birds of the world.
7. Born into a pirate crew, you have travelled the world and pillaged many trade vessels. As repentance for your actions, you now complete quests for the trade guild you once attacked and stole from.
8. Your family was supportive but sad when you set off to become a mercenary for hire, so you're creating them a keepsake. From every foe, you collect a tooth; you would like seventy teeth for your gory but decorative souvenir.

Appearance and Items

Distinctive features

1. A raccoon's tail has been braided into your messy hair.
2. You are missing part of your right ear, it was torn from you during a fight with a wolf.
3. Barbed wire wraps around your arms; it doesn't hurt you.
4. You dress in all black with dark, badly applied make-up on your eyes and lips.
5. A deep scar runs from the top of your nose to your shoulder.
6. Eight blue orbs, once the eyes of a giant spider, hang on a necklace around your neck.
7. You don't wear boots, instead opting to walk with muddy feet.
8. Some of your teeth have been filed into sharp points.
9. You still wear the rusty, broken shackles that once bonded you to forced servitude.
10. You wear a sash; each badge represents a notable defeat.

1d10

Defensive clothing

1. Flimsy, steel breastplate that has been badly patched-up.
2. Protective, ill-fitting boots made from bark and leather.
3. Hefty bronze pauldrons; a stark contrast to your lightweight and breathable shirt and trousers.
4. Iron bracers that are held together with large, steel rivets. Once part of a forge's pipes.
5. Peacock feather loincloth that you wear over your trousers.
6. Mismatched pieces of flawed armour that have been taken from the site of a bloody battle.
7. Tortoise shell with a fastened chinstrap to protect your head.
8. Treated scales of a huge fish create your shimmering wrap.
9. Ripped shirt and shorts, held together with a chunky belt.
10. Long, hyena-hide cloak that flows from your shoulders and touches the floor.

1d10

Randall Portoni - rportoni@yahoo.com

Vicious weapons

1. Trident made from a thick branch and farming tools.
2. Statue taken from a cathedral that can be used as a blunt maul, or battering ram.
3. Brutal flail consisting of a chain fastened to a shattered rock.
4. Sickle with a full-circle blade; originally used to cut thread.
5. Light hammer once owned by an artisan blacksmith.
6. Whip with sharp animal bones and teeth attached at its end.
7. Homemade flint spear, its shaft is wrapped in dyed fabric.
8. Heavy crossbow once used by the royal army. Normally takes two people to set up and fire it.
9. White greatsword, made from a sharpened elephant tusk.
10. Iron warhammer; its head has an angry face design.

1d10

Meaningful trinkets

1. Pouch full of live woodlice.
2. A neatly folded guard's tabard.
3. Dog tags given to ore miners.
4. Antique quill and ink pot set.
5. Feathered lure used in fishing.
6. Coin with a punched-out hole.
7. Thick oil used for embalming.
8. Storybook about a werewolf.
9. Potato shaped like a dragon.
10. Doll with orcish features.

1d10

Symbolic totems

1. Bangle made from bird cages.
2. Pole painted in striped colours.
3. Furious face carved into stone.
4. Polished, shiny bronze sphere.
5. Roaring bear idol, cast in gold.
6. Autumn tree in stained-glass.
7. Stone full of kind messages.
8. Sleepy monkey hewn in wood.
9. Family of five nesting dolls.
10. Skull carved from obsidian.

1d10

Every detail tells a story

When adding features and clothing to your character, think about the deep connection that a barbarian might have with everything on their person. Do you display a fearsome creature as a trophy? Does your fiery-coloured clothing represent the volcanoes of your home? What story does your appearance tell?

Magical Equipment

Ferocious magic weapons

1. Bladed spear that can shrink into a dagger or grow into a lance on command.
2. Maul that thrums with grey energy. Blasts foes 5ft away with every strike.
3. Medusa-inspired crossbow; can turn its targets into stone.
4. Monkey spirit mace; makes the wielder more acrobatic.
5. Siege crossbow that launches powerful explosive spheres.
6. Gaudy longsword that taunts all surrounding enemies.
7. Prismatic, glass greatsword that can make it's wielder temporarily invisible.
8. Rocky halberd; its user is immune to being frightened.
9. Morningstar with a rose-shaped head that can charm others to fight for its owner.
10. Bolt of lightning formed into the shape of a javelin.

1d10

Merciless magic items

1. Padded overalls that grant their wearer resistance to acid.
2. Explosive charges that shake the earth, causing those in range to fall prone.
3. Mirrored bracers that store incoming elemental energy for the wearer's next attack.
4. Grey potion; the drinker's skin turns to stone for four hours.
5. Handheld stone slab that can send messages one-way.
6. Fiendish rod that can quickly heat up anything it touches.
7. Magnesium firework; can blind everyone in a 60ft radius.
8. Hourglass bracelet; once per day, the wearer can reroll their attack if they miss their target.
9. Wizard's circlet that grants the wearer two basic spells.
10. Small pill that can shrink the user to the size of a mouse for 1d20 minutes.

Fighting Arenas

1. An immense stone colosseum dominates the skyline. Inside, hordes of excitable crowds sit on wooden benches as they eat, drink and jeer at the competitors. Vendors weave through the stands selling brightly coloured flags, badges and warm snacks.

2. Long ago, villagers used this forest clearing for secret combat training, preparing to depose a cruel noble. Once a year, the glade is decorated with bunting and a contest is held in honour of the rebels.

3. A lavish ballroom hosts a fight club where wealthy nobles employ a champion to battle for their family's honour, and spectators bet on the winners. Bouts tend to finish when the crowd demands the fighters clear the polished parquet floor to make room for dancing.

4. Brawls in the dingy courtyard of this tavern are generally unplanned and unregulated. Stacks of empty ale kegs line the damp walls, and a snarling guard dog is chained in one corner.

5. A monastic dojo on the edge of town hosts prohibited bouts, unbeknownst to its owners. While the masters of the dojo rest and meditate upstairs, competitors sneak in through the back door. There is only one rule: don't wake up the dojo's owners.

6. Fights are held on the main deck of a black pirate ship moored in the docks. The cabins beneath hold training equipment, rudimentary medical supplies and bedding for regular competitors.

7. Few know that the city's underground fighting network actually meets underground. Marked drain covers signal the location of each fight, as bouts are held at intersections of a cavernous sewer system.

8. The muddy ground of this island in the swamp is churned up by fighters' heavy feet. Those who compete have their names immortalised on the nearby rocks, win or lose.

Rage Manifestations

It's time to get angry! The table below is full of ideas for how your barbarian's rage could manifest itself on the tabletop, including how this may affect your character and what the rest of your party see.

When your rage is triggered...

1. you begin sweating uncontrollably, wetting your clothes and hair.
2. your pupils become clock faces, and count down until your fury subsides.
3. radiant, arcane tattoos light up on your skin.
4. your teeth and fingernails become slightly sharper, and your hair becomes shaggy.
5. your movements leave a red afterimage hanging in the air.
6. the weapons you're carrying light up and become white hot with your fury.
7. your muscles seem to double in size, stretching and pulling at your clothes.
8. the ground beneath your feet quakes, cracks and splits.
9. the world gets brighter for a second, and thunder booms across the sky above you.
10. you scream at the top of your lungs, a primal cry of fury and ancient power.
11. a ghostly ancestor of yours can be seen fighting just out-of-sync with you.
12. you release an aroma which causes people to cough.
13. your eyes release green light, and you forget everything that happens until it passes.
14. you grow around a foot taller and gain a white, smoky aura.
15. wind whips up around you, and loose debris nearby is picked up in a cyclone.
16. black lightning zaps across your skin, which gently glows for the duration.
17. your eyes become piercing yellow, like those of a hawk.
18. thin, red fur covers your body and your feet magically turn into fiendish hooves.
19. the shadows in the area you're in grow long and unnaturally dark.
20. vines, brambles and flowers wrap around your forearms and calves.

Backstory Inspiration

Use the tables in this book to create imaginative characters with unique backstories, inspired by the locations and lore within your game's setting. You can use this bard's description as inspiration for your own, a guide to structuring backstories, or a fully-usable character for your next game!

Elizabeth Allegro

The gardens of The Sapphire Palace were vast, and needed an army of gardeners to take care of them; Elizabeth Allegro was one such gardener, a cheerful sort who enjoyed singing while she worked. She grew up on a farm nearby, so gardening for rich nobles who couldn't be bothered to do it themselves seemed like easy money.

The palace was owned by a man named Jafén Maledor, a young poet who had amassed a fortune by selling his work and thrived on admiration and applause. He enjoyed showing his rich and famous acquaintances through his well-kept garden, and one day happened to hear Elizabeth sing. Enraptured, he invited her to perform at his upcoming annual gala; with the money he offered, she couldn't turn down his proposal.

She entranced the crowd with her spectacular voice. With the generous sum received from her first performance, she traded in her gardening uniform and purchased an elegant blue, leather vest with a pair of shoes covered in sparkly, diamond-like stones. In the years that followed, she was invited to perform again and again at Fergus' pompous parties full of nobles, and quickly became the highlight of the festivities.

On the fifth anniversary of Elizabeth's first performance, she was gifted a decadent, golden rapier to display in her home. As much as she loved the ostentatious gifts and the attention on the stage, her heart longed to be outdoors once more and for the company of more down-to-earth individuals. She still sings at Fergus' galas and parties, but keeps one eye on the noticeboards in town, just in case any other exciting jobs or opportunities arise that could lead to a new chapter in her life.

The words in bold are parts of the backstory taken from the random tables within this book.

Origins and Goals

This table generates past events in your character's life, and determines what motivated them to choose their adventuring path. You can use each entry as it is, or to inspire a brand new story!

Why did you become an adventurer?

1. You devoted yourself to win a Society of Performers award, and last year you finally won! With the money you earned, you're now seeking out your cunning loan shark to cut ties once and for all.
2. You toured with a well-known songwriter, and played to their crowds as a warm-up act; recently you decided to go it alone and try to make some of your own fans. It has always been a dream of yours to become a household name.
3. A pixie taught you how to play the flute. You enjoy dancing with the fairies, and your new talents have won you a stage to perform at within a fey colony. This is your big break, so you have to make your way there.
4. Gardening was your career, until your boss heard you sing. They now get you to perform at all of their pompous parties, so you look at noticeboards regularly to see if there are any other paid jobs available.
5. You were mentored by the great Rubio del Gourd, and are considered their protégé. They have set up an internship for you with another sculptor on the other side of the nation who can teach you how to carve into diamond.
6. A deceptive circus you were once part of kicked you out and tarnished your name. Your honest tell-all about them launched your investigative career, and now you're looking to crack some new cases.
7. Choosing the life of a daredevil brought shame to your wealthy mother, who wrote you out of her will. To gain her respect once more, you are planning your most outrageous stunt to date — The Firedriver.
8. Your painting skills paired well with a local thieves' guild, and you now create counterfeit art. The big money is in ancient artefacts however, so they have tasked you with finding rare and valuable manuscripts.

Appearance and Items

Distinctive features

1. Your shoes are encrusted with cheap, 'diamond-like' stones.
2. Your teeth are brilliant white, and you enjoy showing them off with a toothy grin.
3. The birthmark on your left cheek resembles a wine goblet.
4. You have an eye tattooed on each palm, which you place on your face when performing.
5. Your braids are dyed every colour of the rainbow.
6. Years of dancing has caused damage to your hips, so you walk with a noticeable limp.
7. A delicate coin belt jingles around your waist as you walk.
8. The steel plates on your body aren't armour, they're drums.
9. Your body is covered in inky scribbles, you write song lyrics on yourself so you don't forget.
10. You love to decorate your face with glittery makeup.

1d10

Spectacular costumes

1. Navy, woollen cloak; it covers a full-body, polka-dot leotard.
2. Oversized white blouse with recently patched dark trousers.
3. Fitted sky-blue shirt and trousers. Huge flares start at the elbows and knees.
4. Yellow cape with a sun design, woven gold reflects warm light.
5. Blue, leather vest with elegantly placed pearl buttons add a subtle elegance to your outfit.
6. Rainbow-coloured ensemble of a red cravat, yellow shirt, green jacket and a violet coat.
7. Odd, knee-length stockings, simple sandals and shorts.
8. Gorgeous, red, satin jacket with long tails and gold buttons; once belonged to a ringleader.
9. Filthy, pink robe with ruffled sleeves and a torn hem.
10. Padded, black jacket with thick red tassels and braids.

1d10

Randall Portoni - rportoni@yahoo.com

Trusty weapons

1. Longsword with a circular hilt; has the silhouette of a crotchet.
2. Twin chisels that double as a pair of sharp shortswords, perfect for a seasoned sculptor.
3. Shoulder crossbow that can be fired by pulling a string.
4. Finger piano that has been converted into a crossbow.
5. Decadent, golden rapier. More a display item than a weapon.
6. Long paintbrush with a pointy end, can be used as a dagger.
7. Hefty, oak table leg taken from a tavern; wielded as a club.
8. Pocket-sized sledgehammer, used for pinning tent pegs.
9. Ornate dagger that was passed onto you as a family heirloom.
10. Gnarled and rusted longsword that was scavenged from a legendary battlefield.

1d10

Theatrical trinkets

1. Almost-full autograph book.
2. Collection of frayed shoelaces.
3. Handwritten sheet music.
4. Gambling token from a casino.
5. Folded carnival pamphlet.

Magical Equipment

Extravagant magic weapons

1. Crossbow in the shape of a violin, it shoots bolts of sound.
2. Flask of magical ink. When the cork is removed, the ink forms into a supremely sharp dagger.
3. Rapier with a shining moon on its hilt. Can blast radiant beams, or produce bright light.
4. Drum-beater club; the music it produces is deafening.
5. Umbrella rapier that can open to slow the user's fall.
6. Trumpet blowgun that fires polished, brass homing darts.
7. Two small maraca clubs. If shaken, they can force others to dance to your beat.
8. Discordant lyre boomerang that can frighten those it hits.
9. Hooked chain whip. Can pull the user towards their target.
10. Sickle decorated with pink ribbons, amplifies the power of any spells cast within 30ft.

1d10

Magnificent magic items

1. Orb holding a golden eye; once a day it can be used to scry.
2. Boots that levitate the user slightly, allowing them to skate over land and water.
3. Clockwork gauntlet that can speed up or slow down time.
4. Ring that can summon fine food or bedding once a day.
5. Circlet with an inset blue gem. When the gem is touched, the user's voice is amplified.
6. When activated, this sphere flashes with bright disco lights.
7. Mirrored shirt that can reflect weak spells targeted at the wearer back at the caster.
8. Music box that plays rapturous applause and laughter.
9. Amber broach that charms merchants into giving discounted prices.
10. Smoke bomb that transports the user to safety within 50ft.

Bardic Spellcasting

Bards are wonderful performers, but they can also cast a menagerie of magnificent spells. Roll on the table below to discover the unique and interesting ways in which your bard taps into their magic power.

To cast bardic spells, you...

1. drink from one of the many elixirs that grant you strange, temporary powers.
2. strum a chord of creation, briefly altering reality.
3. chant while staring into a crystal ball, releasing strange and bizarre effects.
4. read a page of a spellbook you stole from an old wizard.
5. let forth the fiends trapped in your instrument, who help you with whatever you ask.
6. clutch your meteorite bangle, allowing you to tap into the power of another dimension.
7. run your fingers across geometric ley lines, hidden to those unaware of their power.
8. use magical pigment to paint your spell effects into life.
9. ask your magic ruby for help. Unknown to you, the ruby isn't magical at all, you are.
10. unleash the power of dreadful nightmares, harvested during your previous evening's rest.
11. hold up a card taken from an enchanted, mystical deck.
12. harness the power of the colour-spectrum crystals that hang on your necklace.
13. ask hidden fey creatures to playfully cast spells for you.
14. shout power words. A skill developed by an ancient civilisation, taught to you.
15. make sacred animal noises, discharging the power of the primal world.
16. whisper the forbidden secrets of the universe, forcing it to fearfully bend to your will.
17. blow coloured bubbles that each have wild effects.
18. pray to an appropriate deity, requesting aid from one of their angelic host.
19. touch runic tattoos on your skin. Each one has a slightly different power within.
20. gain knowledge, guidance and favour from powerful ancestral spirits.

Quips and Inspiration

Never be lost for words in the heat of battle with these tables of taunts and tributes. Mocking your enemies might distract them enough to put them off their stride, while cheering on your allies can give them an extra boost!

Cutting insults

1. People say your mother is…	1. a dizzy spaniel puppy.
2. Hey! You remind me of…	2. a gangly, pessimistic sloth.
3. You have the personality of...	3. a fool fired from the circus.
4. You'll wish you were…	4. a shrivelled, sprouting potato.
5. How uncouth. You run like…	5. a painfully shy mouse.
6. I'm embarrassed to fight…	6. the tavern toilet's resident troll.
7. I'd be more scared of…	7. a fly trying to leave a window.
8. Rumour has it your dad is…	8. a goat with sawdust for brains.
9. Everyone watch out, it's…	9. a dung-covered turnip farmer.
10. You're less intelligent than…	10. a damp, floppy scarecrow.

Stories and Songs

Even the most talented bards get stage fright when called to perform with no warm-up; roll on the table below to cobble together a quick story or song. Fill in the details if you wish or simply leave the audience questioning whether your bizarre nursery rhyme has a deeper meaning...

Once...

1. on a beach by a blue bay,
2. in the kitchen of a café,
3. deep in a forest ruled by fey,
4. under a huge stone archway,
5. during a wonderful ballet,
6. in a cart that began to stray,
7. on a scorching summer's day,
8. in a fort that began to sway,
9. backstage of a tragic play,
10. in a barn full of old hay,

1d10

there was a...

1. turnip farmer named Fred.
2. troll who lay down dead.
3. tailor with yellow thread.
4. parrot with wings spread.
5. scaly dragon of blood red.
6. boy who stole some bread.
7. bishop filled with dread.
8. figure with deer and sled.
9. tourist with roads ahead.
10. cat who was overfed.

1d10

When...

1. all the crops started to decay,
2. someone ruined their big day,
3. everyone turned into clay,
4. they stood in an old doorway,
5. wolves saw them as tasty prey,
6. they could not find their way,
7. high taxes they could not pay,
8. they heard an almighty neigh,
9. their friend was taken away,
10. they finished their buffet,

1d10

they...

1. ensured they ran and fled.
2. woke up in their comfy bed.
3. hid in a run-down, old shed.
4. grew old and eventually wed.
5. simply gave up instead.
6. found out they were misled.
7. made sure their belly was fed.
8. chose a book and quietly read.
9. knew their tale would spread.
10. tragically lost their head.

BLOOD HUNTERS & MUTANTS

Forget about the life you led before you became a hunter, a brutal path awaits you now. No matter the size of the monsters you'll face, or the insurmountable challenges that will block your way forward, this chapter will equip you with the armour, weapons, gory trophies and blood curdling maledictions you will need to survive.

Backstory Inspiration

Use the tables in this book to create imaginative characters with unique backstories, inspired by the locations and lore within your game's setting. You can use this hunter's description as inspiration for your own, a guide to structuring backstories, or a fully-usable character for your next game!

Ocelot "Ottie" von Geldenmais

Two farmers found Ocelot in a field as a young child – she had raw, glyph-shaped burns on the palms of her hands and soles of her feet, and no memory of who she was or where she had come from. With no sign of any parents or guardians, the farmers took her in and raised her alongside their four other children, naming Ocelot after the wild cats who roamed the fields where she was found.

Young Ottie was often visited by a juvenile fiend, who apparently knew her very well. The two played together in the fields surrounding the farm, but were always watched anxiously. The farmers allowed the friendship because of how much happiness it brought their otherwise quiet child, and hoped that one day the fiend would reveal more about Ottie's past. Over the next ten years, the creature gifted Ottie with various trinkets, including colourful sticks of chalk to help decorate her room and a flat, hooked longsword to help harvest corn when the fields were ripe and ready.

When prompted by the fiend, Ottie prepared for a pilgrimage. As a final gift, the fiend had told her to visit a strange temple in the North that housed a group of monster hunters called The Behemoth Butchers; the crooked structure was surrounded by skeletal fir trees and stood on a hill overlooking the small village of Bogreach. The Butchers' resident herbalist, an eccentric woman named Centuri, would apparently know who Ottie was and have more information about her parents.

Before Ottie left, her adoptive family threw her a huge party and invited all of the neighbouring farms to send her off. Ahead of her lay a long path to self-discovery, but it was one that Ottie finally felt ready for.

The words in bold are parts of the backstory taken from the random tables within this book.

Origins and Goals

This table generates past events in your character's life, and determines what motivated them to choose their adventuring path. You can use each entry as it is, or to inspire a brand new story!

Why did you become an adventurer?

1. Kidnapped with other children your age, you were the only one to pass your captor's gruelling tests and become a blood hunter. Now, later in life, the bounty you are hunting is your old mentor who stole your childhood.
2. You grew up in a rundown house that was haunted by the ghosts of your relatives. With your in-depth knowledge of spirits, you hope to find a way to resolve their unfinished business and put them to rest.
3. You died fighting the fiends that attacked your hometown, but were brought back to life for reasons unknown by dark powers. Your only hope of finding answers is to seek out the fiend who led the attack, a creature named Guulzegrub.
4. You were cloned as part of an immoral experiment; both versions of you received odd powers. You wish to track down your duplicate and discover which one of you is the clone.
5. Lost at night, you were bitten by a feral werewolf who gave you their dark gift. No longer safe in town, you opened a shelter for werewolves, and now travel the land hunting for others that you can rescue.
6. You are often visited by a fiend who asks you riddles, and gives you gifts if you can solve them. To collect your final gift, the fiend has asked you to make a pilgrimage to a strange temple in the North.
7. Your parents were both blood hunters, and they trained you from a young age. Now fully qualified yourself, you drift from town to town completing monster hunting contracts for good coin and good fun.
8. After you fell into a sinkhole, you found yourself in an ancient tomb. An artefact you found there altered your genetic makeup, giving you extraordinary abilities, so you are now seeking the other five tombs of this lost civilisation.

Appearance and Items

Distinctive features

1. Your nails and fingers are constantly caked with dirt.
2. Your eyes are heavily bloodshot and sometimes weep blood.
3. Glyphs are seared into the palms of your hands and the soles of your feet.
4. In the moonlight, your skin appears pale, veiny and slightly translucent.
5. You wear a helmet made from the skull of a horned fiend.
6. The names of the creatures you have hunted are carved into your chest.
7. Your tongue is thin and forked like that of a snake.
8. Instead of water, you sweat a dark and viscous liquid.
9. Your eyes are reflective when they have light shone into them, similar to a cat.
10. Your fingernails are yellow and chunky like a troll's.

1d10

Grotesque armour

1. Black leather trenchcoat with a multitude of pouches full of grisly lure and bait.
2. Cleric's breastplate. Its holy symbols have been crossed out with messy scratches.
3. Translucent scale mail stolen from a ghostly, undead soldier.
4. Leather armour studded with lucky star symbols and glyphs.
5. Heavily charred chain shirt, some of its rings are mangled.
6. Orange leather overalls with pauldrons made from the ridged shell of a giant lobster.
7. Warm, black fur overcoat that covers a formal shirt and tie.
8. Heavy breastplate with dragon detailing and dark breeches.
9. Brass kite shield, on its interior there are gaps for small vials.
10. Scaled plate vest with long metal spikes, like those of a porcupine, on its back.

1d10

Randall Portoni - rportoni@yahoo.com

Forbidden weapons

1. Flat, hooked longsword with a hilt made from griffon bones.
2. Whip made from two entwined, dimly lit-up lures from an enormous aquatic creature.
3. Curved scimitar with a red steel blade featuring long trenches.
4. Crossbow that once belonged to a famous ghost hunter.
5. Rapier with two blades that meet at a piercingly sharp tip.
6. An ogre's hand tied to the end of a thick staff acts as a weighty greatclub.
7. Gnarled scythe taken from a haunting, undead wraith.
8. Trident that once belonged to a guard of an underwater city.
9. Bow made from a manticore's rib, and arrows from its spines.
10. Long, curved greataxe often used by executioners.

1d10

Occult trinkets

1. Bottle of acrid vinegar.
2. Holy symbol woven from grass.
3. Sticks of coloured chalk.
4. Two coins with eye designs.
5. Sketchbook full of runes.
6. An unlabelled vial of ashes.
7. Two chicken feet tied together.
8. Annotated monster almanac.

Monster hunting practicalities

Fighting monsters for a living takes good knowledge and great tools. When designing your character's look, think about the practical apparatus that they might need, the weapons they could use and why they use them, and the lasting damage that years of monster hunting could have done to their bodies.

Randall Portoni • rportoni@yahoo.com

Magical Equipment

Hemocrafted magic weapons

1. Whip with a snake's soul that can constrict and trip foes.
2. Scissor-like shortswords that can cut through body and soul.
3. Rapier whose blade exudes a sickly and poisonous gas.
4. Shortbow that fires healing potion arrows; when hit, the target's health is boosted.
5. Oily, black scimitar that can splash tar onto foes, making them more flammable.
6. Crude mace that temporarily blinds and deafens anyone nearby when it detonates.
7. Flail that ends in a hefty, iron lantern. Its purging flames can incinerate aberrations.
8. Dragon-fang longsword that has a powerful, acidic bite.
9. Icy spear that forms a durable shield when held horizontally.
10. Tamed, animated halberd that can fly towards enemies.

1d10

Prohibited magic items

1. Obsidian cube that transfers the life from one target to another when activated.
2. Skull-shaped whistle that sounds excruciatingly shrill to undead creatures.
3. Ash that can make a surface rock hard if scattered onto it.
4. Gloopy ooze that expands if the bottle is smashed.
5. Chimera grenades that erupt with fire, acid or cold damage.
6. Mirror that can create a new, friendly copy of a beast nearby.
7. Hand of a flesh golem that can be sent to run basic errands.
8. Speckled fungus that, when eaten, can make a creature temporarily grow extra arms.
9. Chronology bomb that can freeze time in a small area.
10. Neon syrup that gives the user magical resistance and makes their attacks magical.

Malediction Auras

Through bizarre and forbidden hemocraft, blood hunters can unleash horrible curses upon their foes. Roll on the table below for inspiration and descriptions for how they might manifest on the battlefield.

Your malediction manifests as...

1. a black fog that shimmers and surrounds your target.
2. blood dripping from your targets eyes, nose and mouth.
3. undead hands that grab and scratch at your target's skin and clothing.
4. seven floating, bloodshot eyeballs that gently hover around your target's head.
5. ethereal manacles and chains that wrap and constrict your target's body.
6. thick, crimson veins that appear across your target's skin as their flesh pales.
7. hundreds of different animal eyes that appear across your target's body.
8. light beaming from where your target's shadow should be.
9. a ghostly duplicate of your target that mischievously distracts and pranks them.
10. a translucence to your target's skin; their bones and organs all become visible.
11. a ghastly, red halo around your target's head.
12. runes, glyphs and script appearing and disappearing in the air around your target.
13. pure white ivy that crawls and grows across your target.
14. discordant music made from otherworldly chanting voices.
15. two fairies that lazily fly over your target, adorning them with linen and laurels.
16. a featureless and suffocating iron mask that clamps over your target's head.
17. an unpleasant, chunky centipede that crawls in and out of your targets clothing.
18. a flash of light, briefly revealing your target in a fiendishly corrupt visage.
19. the foul stench of decay that pollutes the air around your target in a pale green mist.
20. eerie laughter from a hundred different sources, filling the room around your target.

Hunter Academies

There are stories of hidden schools scattered across the world who teach and train children to become efficient monster hunters, and ruthless fighters. Roll on the tables below to create the academy your character attended.

The faction is called...

1. The School of the Warg.
2. The Serpent's Brood.
3. Wolves of Wunderkind.
4. The Flameborn.
5. The Circle of Five Faces.
6. Draco Ignis Artemis.
7. The Behemoth Butchers.
8. The Torch Bearers.
9. The Spectral Snow.
10. House of Thaddeus.

1d10

Pupil training involves...

1. harnessing forbidden magic.
2. absorbing monstrous DNA.
3. achieving a peak physique.
4. training on another plane.
5. a dangerous pilgrimage.
6. mastering every weapon type.
7. years of academic education.
8. taming a juvenile monster.
9. surviving alone in the wild.
10. building up a toxin immunity.

1d10

To graduate the final trial, pupils must...

1. defeat a fellow blood hunter initiate from a rival school.
2. return with trophies from a year touring the world fighting monsters and earning money.
3. slay an almighty beast with the help of other graduates.
4. make a deal with a bizarre, supernatural entity and join its ever-growing legion.
5. steal an egg from a monster's nest without disturbing it.
6. voyage to the ethereal plane to defeat a ghost – and bring back evidence.
7. be bitten by a sacred werewolf and gain it's dark curse.
8. assassinate their master and take their place as leader of the blood hunter academy.

Academy Descriptions

1. The order works out of a wing of a wizarding university. Neither party advertises the association, but the communities maintain a respectful, if uneasy, coexistence. The wing used to house the university laboratory and shares a wall with the city morgue.

2. An obsidian column rises out of a lake of lava, and the structure has been transformed into a tower. Those with access must ascend a spiral staircase to reach the order's training quarters at the top.

3. Foreboding notices warn travellers to keep their distance from a deserted settlement. The signs were installed during a plague, but the blood hunter residents are happy for visitors to remain deterred.

4. A sprawling network of interconnected tents. Communal spaces and rooms belonging to the order's leaders are lavishly furnished, while acolytes share sparse quarters and sleep on the hard ground.

5. A butler and housekeeper are the only individuals who are seen rowing back and forth to this well-appointed townhouse, which is situated on a deserted island near a coastal city. Blood hunters enter the building through a series of underwater tunnels.

6. High walls and sentry posts create an intimidating perimeter around this industrial, brick-built facility. From the outside, the only visible features on the building are high windows with iron bars.

7. The order meets, trains and hides from society in the catacombs beneath a vast city. Flickering candlelight reflects a pallid glow off the bones that cover every wall, pillar and archway of the cathedral-like hall where rituals are performed.

8. Skeletal fir trees shield most of the dark mansion from the sight of the superstitious villagers in the valley below. The crimson shutters that line the windows are opened only when the sun sets.

Friends and Enemies

These tables will populate your character's story with friends, mentors, guardians and useful allies. However, be on the lookout for villainous rivals and scoundrels whose only aim is to tarnish your character's reputation!

Master monster hunters

1. Olu Greyheart – Told they were 'too old' to become a hunter, but recently graduated.
2. Südved Rudolphson – Tells jokes even in dire situations. Wears gilded, navy armour.
3. Ealken of Lester – Born to a pair of vampires, their eyes are bloodshot and haunted.
4. Dizzia Cosmio – Gained fame for killing the Cyclops of Venna.
5. Trivius Gornt – A gruff hunter who wears armour with enough slack to fit their werewolf form.
6. Corvus – Once an unwilling test subject; carries scars, ill manners and a huge sword.
7. Tomasine Léddia – The only mutant to serve in the royal guard. Looks down on others.
8. Xerxes Gull – After killing their mentor, they went into hiding.

1d8

Clandestine colleagues

1. Junnôd Mertens – Fascinated by blood hunters, has a broad range of monster memorabilia.
2. Gilgrum O'Shea – Outlawed professor of Abyssal, Infernal and Draconic languages.
3. Grimace – Ghoul who sells information for fresh meat.
4. E'tlarin Alasiael – Elven smith who crafts fine, silver blades. Charitable and kind-hearted.
5. Twigfen Lotusleaf – Small but highly charismatic surgeon.
6. Serret Rodewell – Muscular breeder of sturdy horses. Also a gossip in the local tavern.
7. Bartoléme – Up-and-coming bard with a taste for monster stories. Portly and balding.
8. Centuri Karan – Eccentric herbalist, recently dabbled in the synthesis of mutagens.

Backstory Inspiration

Use the tables in this book to create imaginative characters with unique backstories, inspired by the locations and lore within your game's setting. You can use this cleric's description as inspiration for your own, a guide to structuring backstories, or a fully-usable character for your next game!

Damian Glaive

Damian Glaive was eloquent in the ways of warfare, and fought alongside his comrades of the 65th Battalion in a particularly unforgiving and brutal war with the Southern Nation. He had trained all his life to be a soldier, so he was used to the harsh conditions of the battlefield, but the one thing his training did not equip him for was betrayal. As Damian's squad traversed through a town called Riverflow, a member of his party set off several fireball grenades that destroyed everything and everyone. He managed to take cover in a burning cathedral of Soothyr, the god of Tranquillity; lost, afraid and badly wounded, he prayed to the deity of the burning shrine, and gained their favour. As the cathedral began to cave in, Soothyr granted Damian a path through the destruction, and he miraculously survived.

Since then, Damian has been a conduit for his deity's tranquillity, and has abandoned the ways of war. He was taken under the wing of a high priest in his hometown by the name of Trae Gleaf, a devout but humble cleric of Soothyr. Damian traded his army chainmail for a set of shining, pale-blue armour and a long piece of exquisite cloth over his head, a look that perfectly mirrors the hero he saw in the stained-glass windows of Riverflow's burning cathedral.

When he isn't memorising the holy book of Soothyr, Damian works alongside Trae to investigate the betrayal he faced all those years ago. They are eager to seek out and question those responsible for destroying the sacred temple and Damian's comrades – not for justice, not for retribution, but simply for answers and understanding.

The words in bold are parts of the backstory taken from the random tables within this book.

Origins and Goals

This table generates past events in your character's life, and determines what motivated them to choose their adventuring path. You can use each entry as it is, or to inspire a brand new story!

Why did you become an adventurer?

1. During the brutal war you were fighting in, you prayed to your deity for the first time outside a burning cathedral and gained their favour. You are now seeking the people responsible for incinerating the sacred temple.
2. While drowning at sea, you were rescued by an angel of the deity you now worship. They told you that you had been chosen as a cleansing touch to the plague ravaging the settlements nearby.
3. You and your guild stole a multitude of holy manuscripts to sell on for coin, but after reading one you found yourself converted. You wish to recover and return the other sacred scripts that were stolen.
4. Both of your parents were priests, so you were brought up with a deep connection to your deity. You would like to be the first one in your family to follow the holy pilgrimage of a famous seer across the land.
5. Once a noble in the queen's court, you were cast out for discovering their undead secret. With nothing left, the temple was the only place that would accept you. Now, you are gathering evidence in order to unseat the monarch.
6. Because you have lived a holy and righteous life, you were entrusted by your temple to carry a heretical artefact to a noble dragon. There, you must convince the reptile to destroy it in their purifying fire.
7. You have worked as your hometown's holy healer for many years now, and are well-loved by its people. After running out of grimroot, you need to make your dangerous annual trip to harvest it again.
8. You are one of the lead scribes of your deity's scriptures; after receiving a strange vision of a forgotten temple in a lush jungle, you have put your holy work on pause so you can seek out this sacred region.

Appearance and Items

Distinctive features

1. You move slowly with calm and considered gracefulness.
2. Around each of your brown irises is a ring of golden yellow.
3. A dark, raven-black stripe streaks across your otherwise brightly coloured hair.
4. Prayers, rites, scriptures and proverbs are tattooed on your forearms and neck.
5. You smell strongly of sage and lavender, herbs you often burn.
6. You wear a fine steel mask in the shape of a weeping face.
7. Prayer beads wrap around your right arm and snake all the way up to your shoulder.
8. Holy water sloshes around in the oversized glass bottle you carry on your back.
9. A tapestry hangs over your shoulders and forms a cape.
10. Your head is covered under a long and exquisite silk cloth.

1d10

Ceremonial armour

1. Your set of sackcloth robes show off your humble attitude.
2. Armour based on a hero from a cathedral window, its design resembles stained-glass.
3. Marine-style leather armour with hanging fishing nets, plated scales and a green hue.
4. Rugged hide armour made from your deity's sacred beast.
5. The links in your chain mail each have an engraved law.
6. Breastplate with long strips of parchment hanging from it, creating a skirt of paper.
7. Glistening leather armour, regularly bathed in holy oils.
8. Violet scale armour, reserved for high priests and bishops.
9. Your breastplate has a cage for candles to light your path.

Spiritual Weapons

By the power of your deity, may your enemies be struck down with your mighty spiritual weapon and spirit guardians! But what form do these ethereal defenders take as they soar towards your victims?

Your weapon takes the shape of a...

1. rusty anvil with your personal crest embossed on the side. It screeches as it travels.
2. gravedigger's shovel with a crooked shaft and sharp blade.
3. clenched stone fist, 50 times larger than your own. Confetti explodes out of each hit.
4. cast-iron frying pan with your favourite food cooking inside; green fire climbs up its edges.
5. gleaming brass bell decorated with holy symbols; bolts of red energy crackle across it.
6. mighty tome with stapled steel bindings on the spine. It casts a shadow of a soaring raven.
7. hugely oversized, orange carrot with long, leafy fronds; leaves a trail of dirt and soil.
8. giant ship's wheel covered in seaweed and briny water.

1d8

Your guardians have the appearance of...

1. six beams of sharp, neon light that zip around you in a circle.
2. three translucent angels with large greatswords standing dormant unless provoked.
3. floating jellyfish mines that detonate if touched by anyone you see as a threat.
4. armour-clad ferrets that snarl at and bite foes. They sniff the air looking for danger.
5. sludgy magma that bubbles on the floor around you giving off oppressive heat.
6. fey fairies that twinkle and dance, but turn into dark and ravenous harpies if disturbed.
7. four ghostly duplicates of yourself, each one standing in an offensive attack position.
8. a blustery sandstorm of glass shards billowing around you.

DRUIDS & GEOMANCERS

Whether they defend the frigid tundra, arid deserts or lush rainforests, druids are all united by their love and fierce protectiveness of nature. Use the tables in this chapter to answer the call of the wild and plant deep roots in your character's backstory with wild shape quirks, animal helpers, sacred sites and so much more!

Randall Portoni - rportoni@yahoo.com

Randall Portoni - rportoni@yahoo.com

Backstory Inspiration

Use the tables in this book to create imaginative characters with unique backstories, inspired by the locations and lore within your game's setting. You can use this druid's description as inspiration for your own, a guide to structuring backstories, or a fully-usable character for your next game!

Wyn Waterchild

Wyn Waterchild can often be found staring into a lake, seeking answers to her current dilemma. Wyn was recently told that her dear mother and druidic elder, Margitte, is actually a magical sea hag in disguise. Margitte has been slowly siphoning power from her druidic clan and using it to fuel her own, harming the other elders and environment in the process.

The source of this wisdom was The Sycamore Sage – an ancient druid who spent so long meditating under a tree that he was eventually absorbed into its trunk. Unfortunately, after giving Wyn his warning, the Sage immediately fell back to sleep and did not share any advice on how to stop Margitte. Wyn's attempts to rouse him by pelting his tree with the pine cones she keeps in a box in her bag have all been unsuccessful.

Her developing magic is heavily influenced by her now anxious and prickly mood. Whenever she transforms into her wild shape, she has a long, barbed tail and spikes protruding across her body – some of which have failed to contract from Wyn's shoulders, even in her human form, so she hides them with a heavily furred shoulder wrap.

Wyn tried to steal her mother's staff from the circle's sacred site, an overgrown garden frozen in a perpetual state of autumn; her plan was to destroy the weapon in the hope that this might break the hag's power. As soon as Wyn touched the pine staff, the golden claws at each end tightened and the amber stones within them started to glow. Wyn didn't understand what this meant, but she grabbed the staff and ran, knowing she had to find a group to help her remove this malevolent leader from her fallen druidic circle.

The words in bold are parts of the backstory taken from the random tables within this book.

Origins and Goals

This table generates past events in your character's life, and determines what motivated them to choose their adventuring path. You can use each entry as it is, or to inspire a brand new story!

Why did you become an adventurer?

1. You travelled the world on a galleon run by oceanic druids, until an ivory-white vessel attacked and sunk your ship. As the only survivor, you are looking to find who did this to you and your friends, and why.
2. Born into a druidic cult, you were raised as a sacrifice to stop a prophecy of a terrible fire. Before they could sacrifice you to the land, you fled with the skills they taught you, but you know that one day soon they will come looking for you.
3. Raised by a family of dryads in the woods, you recently went to town for the first time. This ignited a wanderlust in you, making you hungry to see the world and travel to all of its different towns and cities.
4. In death, your uncle passed his magic staff to you, setting you on the path to become a druid. He also left you a map that leads to a secluded cave; you have no idea what waits for you there, or what secrets he hid.
5. The leader of your druidic circle blessed you, and gave you the title 'Voice of Nature'. With this title, you want to reunite the different druidic circles from across the land who have warred for centuries.
6. After losing a game against an eladrin, they employed you as a fey gardener. It was a tough and thankless task. Eventually, they sent you back to reality to tend to the forests and jungles that are in need of some care.
7. You recently discovered that your dear mother, and druidic elder, was in fact a magical and evil hag in disguise. You ran from your home, knowing that somehow you must try to remove this malevolent leader from your fallen druidic circle.
8. You are the heir to a famed line of supernatural zookeepers. When your animals became infected with an undead taint, you and your family split up to look for answers and, more importantly, a cure.

1d10

Randall Portoni - rportoni@yahoo.com

Safeguarded Sites

1. This deep loch is permanently haunted by a dense, eerie mist. Casual travellers rarely linger in this area for long. Sensitive souls can feel that the separation from the spirit world is fragile here.

2. Centuries ago, a volcano on the verge of eruption was magically frozen in time. It has been contained in a perpetual state of imminent destruction ever since. Generations of druids have watched over the enchantment to ensure it is not disturbed.

3. Fierce sea winds buffet a stretch of deserted beach. Sand dunes have formed a natural barrier just beyond the high tide point, protecting a circle of ancient standing stones.

4. An avenue of maple trees can be found in the overgrown garden of an abandoned mansion. These trees were planted by a wizard mourning a great loss and exist in a perpetual state of autumn.

5. This rocky basin is surrounded by huge mountain ranges on all sides. Thunderstorms are prevalent in this spot and it is extremely rare for a night to pass without an awe-inspiring display of lightning and green aurora illuminating the dark sky.

6. At first glance, nothing seems unusual about this field. However, closer investigation reveals thousands of toadstools grow within the tufty grass. No two are alike and each has its own unique qualities.

7. This small, crystalline island nestles in the centre of a dark swamp. The tree cover grows thicker and the animal calls grow louder as you approach the island through channels of opaque, stagnant water.

8. Tall, hexagonal stepping stones skirt the base of a rugged cliff edge, climbing up and back on themselves towards a small cave halfway up the cliff. Constant sea spray makes the path slippery, but also replenishes a mystical rock pool within the cave.

Backstory Inspiration

Use the tables in this book to create imaginative characters with unique backstories, inspired by the locations and lore within your game's setting. You can use this fighter's description as inspiration for your own, a guide to structuring backstories, or a fully-usable character for your next game!

Grendar Throkka

The savannahs around Littlebrook were home to marauders and bandits, so despite growing up in a happy and safe neighbourhood within the small mining community, Grendar found himself in dangerous company during his teens and eventually joined a bandit gang. His new friends were led by a woman named Zhang Ma – a quick thinker who was excellent with a bow and never too far from her ferocious dog, Spike.

After a few years running with Zhang's Gang, Grendar was involved in an arms deal that went wrong. He and his best friend at the time, Davidson, were thrown in jail for five years. Behind bars, they both reconsidered their choice to join the gang and promised each other that, when free, they would join the town guard and try to make their hometown safe.

Three years into their sentence, Grendar was given a unique opportunity by the prison officers: if he was to testify against Zhang's Gang, he would be let free early. He told them everything they wanted to know, but by doing so he incriminated Davidson, whose sentence was then extended.

Grendar did eventually become a member of Littlebrook's town guard, and was very successful. His armour is decorated with rows and rows of medals, and his house is full of thank-you books and notes from grateful villagers. However, he lives with the guilt of extending Davidson's prison sentence, and is trying to seek him out to make amends. His old friend's whereabouts are unknown, but Grendar has heard rumours that a man by that name recently joined the nation's top army regiment called The Cavalier Elite. It isn't much to go on, but Grendar is determined to find and ask for forgiveness from Davidson after all these years.

The words in bold are parts of the backstory taken from the random tables within this book.

Origins and Goals

This table generates past events in your character's life, and determines what motivated them to choose their adventuring path. You can use each entry as it is, or to inspire a brand new story!

Why did you become an adventurer?

1. Your desire for coin led you to the lucrative life of a bounty hunter. It has been a long road, so now you are looking for a place to settle and open a bakery... but new and exciting contracts make it hard for you to leave your old ways behind.
2. You were a bandit during your teens. Time in jail made you reconsider your choices, such as the time you abandoned your old ally in their hour of need. Now you are seeking them out to make amends.
3. During a war, you and your sibling were chosen to join the army as part of a mandatory recruitment drive. Your sibling died in battle, but you feel compelled to investigate new rumours of their survival.
4. As part of a travelling troupe of street entertainers, you performed outrageous and ostentatious fights for coin. After a pay dispute, you left to prove to them that you could make it as a 'real' adventurer.
5. You unearthed part of a broken sword when farming, and it inspired you to study warfare. Now, with the hilt in your bag, you won't rest until you find and reforge the rest of the sword's shattered blade.
6. Your parents are talented blacksmiths, and you used to help test their weapons before each sale. Their customers told you stories of a legendary pair of daggers, hidden far away. So, when you were old enough, you set off to find them.
7. All you remember after your head wound is a lighthouse and a scruffy dog. More of your life comes back to you in flashes, but you are following the clues you have to learn more about who you were.
8. You served as a knight's squire. When they retired, they gifted you their sword. To follow in their footsteps, you are now travelling to a world-famous gladiator tournament that they once won, and aim to win too.

Combat Tactics

The rest of your party are looking to tap into your combat experience! Roll on this table before each battle for skirmish tactics, or roll on the table just once to choose a manoeuvre that your fighter particularly enjoys using.

Signature combat manoeuvres

1. Lay traps on the battlefield, then lure your enemies in.
2. Engage the largest creature and hold them at bay.
3. Acrobatically dance around the battlefield, distributing damage to each enemy.
4. Quickly run into the fray, giving your targets no time to make a plan or react.
5. Find a quiet place to hide, then surprise your enemies when they least expect it.
6. Fortify yourself and wait for your enemies to come to you.
7. Use the environment to your advantage and tactically destroy the battlefield.
8. Find high ground and snipe your enemies one by one.
9. Command your party to move into a diamond, arrow or column formation.
10. Fire ranged attacks, until your targets are close enough to engage in melee.
11. Scream battle cries to intimidate your enemies before and during the battle.
12. Deliver finishing blows to any weakened targets to take them out of the fight.
13. Flank and overwhelm enemies who are engaged with your teammates.
14. Grapple tough enemies, making them easier for the rest of your party to attack.
15. Focus your attention on any ranged attackers first.
16. Quietly remove as many targets as possible before the fighting begins.
17. Incapacitate any spellcasters on the battlefield as a priority.
18. Go to the centre of the fight and act as an enemy magnet.
19. Find tactical cover for you and your party, moving slowly forward with extra protection.
20. Fight along the edges of the battlefield, covering your rear.

Backstory Inspiration

Use the tables in this book to create imaginative characters with unique backstories, inspired by the locations and lore within your game's setting. You can use this monk's description as inspiration for your own, a guide to structuring backstories, or a fully-usable character for your next game!

Tracks in the Snow

The king of Anterram decreed that all youths in his kingdom must spend the next ten years training to become warrior monks; his army reserves were dwindling after a recent war, so he was anxious to build the land's defences once more. Tracks in the Snow (or "Snowy" to his friends) was one such youth, and was stolen from his family by the king's guards, sent to live in an arctic monastery in a tundra hundreds of miles away from his home. Snowy's new family were called The Lightfinders, a cadre of cartographers and martial artists dedicated to mapping the unexplored areas of the frigid west – they served the cruel king without question.

Einar Gunnart ran the monastery, an aging combat trainer who was stronger than most monks half her age. She taught Snowy and the other children how to fight and how to harness ki, the earth's raw organic energy. The Lightfinders channelled the brutal, wild fighting style of the polar owlbears native to the region – opting for heavy paw strikes rather than punches, and leaping tackles rather than kicks. Snowy was clearly gifted, and became one of Einar's finest students despite his reluctance.

Snowy returned to Anterram after his decade of training, but found it a different place to the one he had left all those years ago. It was affluent and gilded, and its people were rich and lazy. He spent a season with his family, but, as the time to join the king's army of warrior monks drew near, he fled the country with nothing but his frayed linen clothes, a hatchet with a bamboo handle that his father had gifted him, and a bag he made using an owlbear's jawbone. Snowy has been searching the land for an order of monks whose beliefs align with his own ever since.

The words in bold are parts of the backstory taken from the random tables within this book.

Origins and Goals

This table generates past events in your character's life, and determines what motivated them to choose their adventuring path. You can use each entry as it is, or to inspire a brand new story!

Why did you become an adventurer?

1. Born as the Chosen One, you trained hard, but a newer prophecy left you as a no one. Your masters told you that only the Chosen One would be able to bend ki to their will; you are going to prove them all wrong.
2. A shipwreck left you stranded on a monastic island, which you later made your home. Now, you hope to purify a lifetime of piracy and pillaging by helping those around you in any way you can.
3. Your land requires youths to spend ten years as a monk. You welcomed the service, but didn't like the monastery you learnt at or how they treated students. You are looking for an order of monks whose ideals align with your own.
4. You learnt to channel ki without a tutor, through hard work and discipline, and made a name for yourself. You feel obliged to share your advanced knowledge of ki, and travel the land as a famous teacher.
5. You were born into a family of thieves, but left the life they gave you to become a monk. With your father recently passing, you are travelling to accept your inheritance so you can donate it to the poor.
6. Once a circus gymnast, a martial artist sought to train you after seeing you perform. After years of expensive coaching, you realised they were a charlatan. They fled, and you are hunting them down to bring them to justice.
7. Feared because of your natural link to ki, your parents sent you to a monastery to be 'fixed'. Having left the order many years ago, you've heard that it was recently attacked, so you are looking for answers.
8. You won a competition to be trained by warrior monks. It was a punishing experience, but you eventually gained their trust. They have asked you to find new entrants for next year's competition.

Their signature fighting style is...

1. chaotic and haphazard to watch at first, but then becomes a hypnotic dance.
2. precise and measured. Each move is engineered to be as energy efficient as possible.
3. brutal, channelling the spirit and strength of a wild bear.
4. slow and traditional. Their methods have never changed.
5. designed to be discreet. Moves aim to stop the target from making a sound.
6. rhythmic and fluid. Their body is always moving and bending.
7. reluctant – violence is only a last resort. A blessing is spoken at the end of every fight.
8. acrobatic and full of flourishes, such as a backflips or spins.

Sacred Monasteries

1. Originally built with defence rather than comfort in mind, this hilltop, stone keep has narrow windows, hard floors and little architectural style. Its inhabitants unsuccessfully try to bring warmth to the stark interiors with handmade tapestries and rugs.

2. The thick, marble walls of this beautiful villa glow softly in the sun. The building wraps around a peaceful inner courtyard, filled with lush planting and the sound of softly trickling water.

3. More like a small village, this monastery has a few simple communal buildings at its centre. From there, rows of tiny cottages fan out like rays from the sun. Each cottage has its own thatched roof, brightly painted front door and carefully tended garden.

4. A tall townhouse is squeezed between a blacksmith and a tavern in the poorest area of the city. Worn stone steps lead up to a front door covered in messily pinned notices. The windows and gutters need urgent repair, but cheery voices can be heard within.

5. Arctic winds howl around the surface entrance of this monastery, which is camouflaged in the surrounding tundra. Below lies a warren of underground rooms, lit by magic and warmed by hot springs.

6. Built on the outskirts of a prosperous port city, this monastery's towering spire gets good views over both land and sea. The order within benefits from the bustling trade of goods and gossip.

7. Spread over many acres of land, this working dairy farm has many outbuildings where the order eat, sleep and train. Those in long-term residence must also work the land and tend to the livestock.

8. Horses struggle to get up the rocky path to this monastery, which perches precariously on the side of the mountain. This haphazard stronghold has clearly been rebuilt many times.

Friends and Enemies

When a monk dedicates themselves to an order, they become part of a community with time-honoured traditions. Which of these individuals help your character navigate their path in life and which disrupts their balance?

Martial artists

1. Masshta Sipti – Sees their monastic life as a prison. Has shaggy hair and worn shoes.
2. The High Illuminator – Calm in front of their order, but acts very suspiciously when alone.
3. Jan Fellsman – Fiery and rude, expelled from six monk orders.
4. Olga Bilds – Always tripping over their oversized robes, apologises constantly.
5. Kadrak Narokz – Stickler for obscure traditions. Their staff doubles as a measuring stick.
6. Della Tristwater – Meditates for days at a time, rumoured to have a beautiful singing voice.
7. Lawn Elsetree – The finest athlete in their order's history.
8. Einar Gunnart – Aging combat trainer, stronger than most monks half their age.

1d8

Associates of the monastery

1. Theo Floris – Well-mannered tailor who specialises in exquisite linen wraps.
2. Kurt Hardhit – Ambitious owner of a martial arts dojo.
3. Sandreh Yula – Former city mayor, often found tending to a small tranquil garden.
4. Paipur Lightforce – Calm creator of high-quality inks. Dabbles in poisoncraft.
5. Watt Sombun – Passionate reader and keeper of the capital's sacred library.
6. Nurse Lou – Director of an orphanage. Their orphans are considered extended family.
7. Anh Aym – Spy with narrow, darting eyes and a long coat. Can speak many languages.
8. Tor Picacho – Physician who manipulates bones and joints.

Backstory Inspiration

Use the tables in this book to create imaginative characters with unique backstories, inspired by the locations and lore within your game's setting. You can use this paladin's description as inspiration for your own, a guide to structuring backstories, or a fully-usable character for your next game!

Veshtixi Mistanjiir

Humble in her devotion to Drakos, Lord of Dragons, Veshtixi's mother prayed for an intervention while fighting off dark creatures that had poured through a tear in reality. She received an almighty miracle – her deity granted her the power to close the fiendish portal, preventing the loss of countless lives. Her deeds were publicised by Veshtixi's step-father, a cynical poet named Esban Qirrel IV; he had written more than a few stories about her mother and gave her the moniker of 'The Paragon'.

After fighting fiends for decades, Veshtixi's mother was eventually defeated by a terrible creature who changed her into an alabaster statue by using forbidden magic. The Paragon's steel longsword, polished armour and title was passed on to Veshtixi; she was expected to take her mother's place and close new portals that had appeared across the land. To her step-father's dismay, she accepted this role. He feared that Veshtixi would meet the same untimely end as her mother, but she believed that this was what she was born to do.

Veshtixi wanted to make the title her own, and not just become a duplicate of her mother. For starters, she always believed that she could achieve more by working with others, even unlikely allies and friends. To form a team of loyal and valiant heroes – this was her own quiet oath to Drakos; she wrote it on a piece of parchment and attached it to her armour with red wax, then engraved the same oath onto her sword's blade.

With a splinter of the alabaster statue of her mother tied around her neck and a satchel full of rations and supplies, she set off. Veshtixi knew that her own important but arduous work had only just begun.

The words in bold are parts of the backstory taken from the random tables within this book.

Origins and Goals

This table generates past events in your character's life, and determines what motivated them to choose their adventuring path. You can use each entry as it is, or to inspire a brand new story!

Why did you become an adventurer?

1. Enlisted into a holy army at sixteen, you travelled a lot during crusades for your god, including to a wondrous star-shaped temple. Years later, you long to go back, and are making the perilous journey west once more.
2. You were visited by an angel in a bizarre dream who set you on your righteous path to become your deity's chosen champion. To seal the deal, you must find the Divine Mace, crafted by the gods.
3. You worked as a slaver, but recently one of your prisoners prayed for you and changed your life. With a newly altered heart, you wish to be reunited with your parents who had long since disowned you.
4. Your mother was a holy knight who was solely responsible for closing fiendish portals across the land. When she died, she passed the mantle onto you. Your important but arduous work has only just begun.
5. As a sword-wielding vigilante, you protected your town from zombies and the terrible blight they spread. This caught the gods' attention, and they have commissioned you to perform this work on a global scale.
6. Scriptures written by a divine knight were buried in seven separate tombs long ago. You have only obtained one scroll so far, but hope to find the rest and discover what kinds of secrets died with such a revered warrior of your faith.
7. You once fell through a gate to the underworld and had to fight your way out. Now, you are looking for ways to fulfil an oath you made to a deity in the underworld, so you can go back to your normal life.
8. Persistent visions from your god about a fortress under siege have led you on a search around the world. You help out in every new battleground you find, but so far none of them match your hallucinations.

10. Tiara with tidal-wave motifs.

1d10

An oath to dress by

A paladin's solemn oath dictates every aspect of their life. When thinking about what your paladin wears or looks like, imagine about how their oath will affect their outward appearance. How would the appearance of a paladin who took an oath of redemption differ to one who took an oath of vengeance?

Smite Manifestations

Paladins have the divinely given ability to bring their deity's wrath down upon those who are found lacking. Before smiting an enemy, roll on this table to determine how your almighty attack looks on the battlefield.

When you smite your enemy...

1. your weapon ignites with purifying and holy white fire.
2. your deity's fallen champions lend you their weapons and all strike your foe at once.
3. an x-ray of your target's skeleton flashes from within their body.
4. a choir of angels sing momentarily in a loud, operatic performance.
5. lightning without source strikes your weapon before you slam it into your foe.
6. thick smoke follows your weapon through the air, and takes a while to disperse.
7. wings of fire adorn your back until your weapon strikes.
8. an illusion is cast in your target's mind, making you look like a harbinger of doom.
9. strange, ethereal creatures pull at your target's soul.
10. you hold your weapon to the sky and fill it with divine power before striking.
11. time slows, and you rapidly hit your foe multiple times.
12. thousands of screams ring out through the air as reality is temporarily shattered.
13. their soul is briefly knocked out of their body, but quickly flies back in.
14. a large, intricate brand stays where your weapon struck.
15. your deity judges them unworthy and they briefly become a shadow.
16. the area of their body you hit turns to liquid and ripples before finding its form again.
17. a ghostly celestial strikes at your enemy from above.
18. any blood spilled turns to bubbling acid and hisses as it singes the floor.
19. you are overcharged by holy magic and blast it into your foe from your chest.
20. the sound of your weapon striking reverberates intensely around you.

Revered Tenets

Once a paladin swears an oath, their life is changed forever, from that moment on the paladin's actions are bound to their beliefs. Roll on this table to find a tenet that will guide your character's behaviour after they have taken their oath.

Sworn promises

1. Order. Bring structure and balance to a chaotic world.
2. Authority. Obey the chain of command and your place in it; responsibility grants honour.
3. Equality. Ensure fair and just treatment for everyone.
4. Drama. Make your life worthy of an epic poem or stage show.
5. Puzzle. Nothing is as simple as it first appears to be; look for true understanding.
6. Restraint. Do all things in moderation including eating, speaking and sleeping.
7. Hard work. Apply yourself diligently to every task, no matter how great or small.
8. Joy. Search for positives and humour in all situations; life shouldn't be taken seriously!
9. Courtesy. Be polite and giving; share whatever you have to those who have less.
10. Nurture. Caring is a mighty strength, not a weakness.
11. Dignity. Treat others with respect and command the same from them.
12. Trust. Keep your heart and mind pure and open to all.
13. Resilience. Persist through times of adversity, even when life looks hopeless.
14. Sincerity. Reject bravado and present your true self, no matter what that looks like.
15. Modesty. Seek no praise or glory for your actions; your reward is righteousness.
16. Focus. Never allow your concentration to falter.
17. Unity. Achieve more by working with others, even unlikely allies and friends.
18. Serenity. Find tranquillity within and radiate peace.
19. Concession. There is a reason for everything; make peace with what you can't change.
20. Power. Strength and control are basic tools of the law.

Blessings and Penance

When your character acts in a way that upholds or honours their oath, they may earn a divine reward or sign from the gods; while transgressions may prompt an act of penance to quickly get back into your deity's good books.

Divine signs and blessings

1. A piece of perfectly ripe fruit appears in your bag, with no bashes or bruises.
2. The parchment scroll you carry now features one more star-shaped symbol.
3. When you look into the night sky, you see two shooting stars cross paths.
4. You find a spider's web knitted to look like your holy symbol.
5. Your armour seems to glow with a soft divine light.
6. Regardless of your conditions, you enjoy a comfortable sleep with pleasant dreams.
7. When you next rest your weapon on the ground, a flower blooms in that spot.
8. You cannot see it, but you hear the song of a swallow in the skies above you.

1d8

Acts of penance

1. Take a plunge in the nearest pool of water you can find, the colder the better.
2. Write a letter to your deity, asking for forgiveness, and read it out loud.
3. Set aside a portion of each of your next day's meals.
4. Carve a small mark into your armour to acknowledge your imperfect behaviour.
5. Remove your shoes and walk barefoot for the next day.
6. Donate a tenth of your money to a worthwhile recipient by the end of the day.
7. Demonstrate the weight of your sorrow by carrying a companions' bag for a day.
8. Begin every sentence for the remainder of the day with the words 'forgive me'.

Friends and Enemies

Who does your paladin turn to for help? The characters in these tables can offer wisdom gleaned from their own past adventures, or could shape your character's portrayal in the legends and tales of the future.

Oath-sworn knights

1. Fiaro Aya — Expert negotiator, will only fight in self-defence.
2. Adroit Voltair — Recently made their oath despite their age. Enjoys learning new things.
3. Guadagno the Valiant — Ruler of a just society. Crown designs are etched into their helmet.
4. Syril Swampwind — Brash and vulgar; their armour looks like it has never been cleaned.
5. Dwent Sondart — Haunted and bloodshot eyes suggest their oath hasn't given them peace.
6. Rupa Cloudio — Their elaborate armour has seen little action.
7. Loira d'Escyla — Credits their long life to the oath they made to their deity, and mint tea.
8. Zasha Mavaya — Reluctant, teenage paladin; rolls their eyes a lot during dull moments.

1d8

Allies and acquaintances

1. Roti Noakes — Disorganised owner of a printing press who reproduces holy texts.
2. Justice Braddock — Passes severe sentences on those who harness necromancy.
3. Tessy Vissa — Keen stable owner who breeds majestic and steadfast steeds.
4. Yin Bulinn — Stonemason who specialises in religious statues.
5. Sir Zagam — Wise scholar of heraldry with wiry eyebrows.
6. Noa Lisserandre — Weaver of fine, silk tabards; concerned about rising import taxes.
7. Ebsan Qirrel IV — Cynical squire who writes poems about each paladin they help.
8. Pip Weedskill — Grocer's child desperate to become a knight, but is very clumsy and loud.

Backstory Inspiration

Use the tables in this book to create imaginative characters with unique backstories, inspired by the locations and lore within your game's setting. You can use this ranger's description as inspiration for your own, a guide to structuring backstories, or a fully-usable character for your next game!

Felix Hearneswift

Felix spent most of his life living peacefully in the small village where he had been born. His days were spent pottering in the garden, updating his extensive stamp collection, and raising his young nephew, Roger.

Late one night, Roger was kidnapped from his small bedroom. It was one of a number of abductions in the area, rumoured to be the work of a gang of rangers led by the notorious and nocturnal Haaken Clamber. Felix realised he would have to develop survival skills himself, if he was to have any hope of tracking Clamber's crew and rescuing young Roger.

Felix set out in pursuit with very little preparation. He carries a weapon borrowed from his neighbour – a horseshoe-shaped longbow – and wears oversized second-hand armour bought at the first market he passed. In colder areas, he wears layers of ill-fitting garments stolen from washing lines as extra insulation. He travels from town to town with Forager, a cheerful mule that he bought as a companion for Roger when then boy first came to live with him.

Over time, Felix's nimble halfling hands have grown calloused and dirty, as he has perfected the use of his multi-tooled pocket knife for tasks such as whittling arrows or filleting fish. Previously, the knife had only been used for delicately peeling stamps off old envelopes.

Recently, the trail Felix and Forager were following suddenly went cold. He suspects Clamber's gang know they are being followed and are being more careful. Staying optimistic however, Felix believes this means they are closer than ever to finding Roger.

The words in bold are parts of the backstory taken from the random tables within this book.

Origins and Goals

This table generates past events in your character's life, and determines what motivated them to choose their adventuring path. You can use each entry as it is, or to inspire a brand new story!

Why did you become an adventurer?

1. You used to move goods from the city to remote villages, but the firm you worked for went out of business. Now, you look for interesting contracts on town noticeboards that utilise the tracking skills you learnt on the road.
2. A usurper stole the throne and exiled you, the rightful monarch's heir, to the desert. You are seeking strong allies who will help you reveal the usurper's crimes and reclaim your oppressed kingdom.
3. Your family were fletchers and scout leaders, so you grew up crafting arrows and teaching camping skills to nobles. You have always felt a greater destiny waited for you, and are eager for adventure.
4. You received a threatening message 1d6 years ago and have been on the run ever since. Bandits, town guards and assassins have all tried to hunt you, but you have no idea who is pulling the strings.
5. After being well paid for killing a dangerous bear, you noticed strange runes on its skin. You also fought a wolf and a boar who had the same markings, and are now looking to find out more about these odd animals.
6. You were drafted into a tyrant's army as a child; years later, you escaped to the mountains and lived peacefully as a hermit. The rocky mountains are cold and wet however, so you are looking to relocate to a sunny beach for a happier life.
7. In order to find your kidnapped relative, you had to master survival skills. Recently the trail went cold, but you think you must be close; the thugs either know you're following, or are using concealment magic.
8. Since you were younger, you have had a recurring dream of a silver mare. Hearing similar stories from others has made you feel compelled to go on an adventure to find this mysterious animal.

Adapting to your situation

Good rangers should always be suitably attired for their environment, but that might not be the case if their adventures take them far from their favoured terrain. A fur coat will serve a survivalist well in snowy conditions, but they may need some linen shorts to wear if they find themselves in a humid jungle!

Magical Equipment

Magic weapons for hunting

1. Net woven from spider silk; if two enemies are caught by it, they become stuck together.
2. Sapling club; chunks can be hacked off for use as tinder, as the club reforms each morning.
3. Blowgun whose darts make targets docile and bleary-eyed.
4. Golden whip that can restrain foes like a pair of manacles.
5. Wolf-motif longsword that can track foes it has injured.
6. Moonlight spear; when held above the user's head, a shield protects them from arrows.
7. Elven longbow, its arrows point you towards whatever you seek before vanishing.
8. Mermaid's trident that silences targets, as if underwater.
9. Dove-shaped crossbow; fires furious birds instead of bolts.
10. Boomerang axes that can also be used as climbing aids.

1d10

Functional magic items

1. Boots with squirrel-fur lining that climb trees with ease.
2. A carved, wooden whistle that only you and the person you are thinking about can hear.
3. Dragonhide armour; releases the scent of a dragon, which wards off other creatures.
4. Six meteorites; if put around camp will nullify bad weather.
5. Bone drinking horn that neutralises poison within it.
6. Brass binoculars that identify heat sources through walls.
7. Enchanted wooden duck that can be used as a lifelike decoy, exploding when attacked.
8. Map that documents every place its user drew blood.
9. Tiny mousetrap that expands and traps a medium-sized creature when triggered.
10. Cat-eared goggles that give the wearer night vision.

Animal Companions

Your animal companion is a...

1. cheerful mule who is quick to make friends, especially with children and the elderly.
2. stately, black stag who treads softly on its hooves. Its eye-catching antlers are copper coloured.
3. majestic hawk. Its golden eyes appear judgemental and it often flys off in a huff.
4. stocky, powerful hyena. It enjoys being groomed, but its hair is always messy.
5. bundle of frenetic energy in the form of a large badger. It amuses itself by digging deep, muddy holes in the ground.
6. slobbering mountain rescue dog. It enjoys naps and can be stubborn when tired.
7. narcissistic anaconda with unusual black and white scales. It prefers to be carried.
8. plump, wild boar. It has huge, curving tusks and striped, charcoal markings.

1d8

You first bonded when...

1. it found you injured and unable to walk. It stayed by your side as you recovered.
2. it guided you down a mountain during a powerful blizzard after you had lost your way.
3. you proved it was not to blame for a village's ruined crops and frightened livestock.
4. it was rejected as the runt of their sibling group. You became its guardian.
5. a druid performed a sacred ceremony to bring together your two connected souls.
6. it fought alongside you when you were under attack from a group of their species.
7. you found it chained up. You freed it and have enjoyed its loyalty ever since.
8. you were a child. It was given to you to teach you animal care and responsibility.

Remote Shelters

1. This ruined observatory clings to the tip of a narrow rocky outcrop. It is only occupied for one month of the year, when the currents that lurk beneath the surrounding waves are at their least treacherous.

2. A domed hut with mudbrick walls and a covered well are the only sights on the horizon for miles around. Travellers swear that the clear water they draw from the well is the finest they have ever sipped.

3. Centuries of erosion have hollowed out a small space beneath the gnarled roots of this immense oak tree. Those seeking shelter must squeeze in and share the nook with any number of woodland creatures and insects that also call it home.

4. Hidden behind a canopy of vines is the entrance of a sandstone tunnel, which leads to a small chamber full of dusty jars and vials. Paintings on the walls suggest further tunnels lead to a burial site.

5. This weather-beaten shack sits just inside the treeline at the edge of a beach. An upturned boat hull forms the roof of a structure built completely from material that has washed up on the shore.

6. A tower originally built by a noblewoman as a place to meet her secret love. In the time since, the structure has fallen into disrepair with hefty cracks and ivy covering most of the walls.

7. Lovingly crafted crochet blankets and cushions cover the odd assortment of furniture in this homely but sparse woodcutter's cottage. Lighting the wood burner makes the single-room structure cosy, and covers everything with a warm glow.

8. A slim glacier cave, accessible only by climbing down a deep crevasse. The icy walls and floor provide no warmth to those inside, but serve as a much-needed hiding place from the ravenous predators who stalk the surrounding tundra.

Special Survival Skills

Any successful ranger needs a good knowledge of a variety of survival skills. However, perhaps there is a talent that comes particularly easily to your character or that they have taken a special pride in mastering. Find out what specialist skill your reliable ranger boasts by rolling on the table below.

Outdoor expertise

1. Creating accurate parchment and charcoal maps of the land you traverse.
2. Choosing the perfect bait and lure to catch a fish.
3. Finding herbs and spices to season even the most basic rations and meals.
4. Starting a fire, even in the rain when your flint and firewood is damp and the ground is soggy.
5. Flawlessly imitating bird calls to attract game when hunting.
6. Weaving waterproof coverings and clothing out of fallen twigs, bark and foliage.
7. Identifying the species, the diet and the mood of an animal by investigating its dung.
8. Picking only the sweetest berries from a hedgerow.
9. Climbing trees without getting stuck or catching splinters.
10. Using soothing sounds to calm irate predators who might attack you.
11. Sourcing poisonous plants and safely distilling their toxins into vials.
12. Locating the softest areas of ground to sleep on, and making pillows out of moss
13. Having a sense of where the nearest water source is.
14. Being able to pick up the faint scent of smoke from a long distance away.
15. Whittling fine trinkets out of fallen tree branches.
16. Getting mud stains out of clothing using only rainwater and coarse pebbles.
17. Correcting for wind speed when firing a ranged weapon.
18. Collecting rare plant seeds that can be sold for profit.
19. Removing honey from a nest without getting stung by a swarm of angry bees.
20. Estimating the distance between you and a coming rain, sand or snow storm.

Friends and Enemies

Rangers rarely bump into other people, for theirs is a life on the road. They never forget a face, however, especially those most important to them. Roll on the tables below to form a web of allies, family and rivals.

Hunters and gatherers

1. Elva Liadon – Upbeat and whistles to themselves. Glues leaves and dirt to their armour.
2. Ieron "Boar" Ikanor – Bulky and muscular, can be curt. Lives in a foul-smelling swamp.
3. Mareva Alkis – An orphan raised by bears. The best (and angriest) tracker around.
4. Mehmetcan – Once lived in the fey realm, now a hermit.
5. Jamar Elson – Prodigal child of a rich noble family. Travels with their pet cheetah.
6. Haaken Clamber – Twisted and brutal, only hunts at night.
7. Ogren Meerkan – Incredible sprinter who is reserved, shy, and very protective of money.
8. Sinara Yan-Den – Unassuming botanist who has outsmarted and felled many big monsters.

1d8

Associates in town

1. Tagreda Togron – Exemplary cartographer with overgrown eyebrows and a squeaky voice.
2. Urian Kadai – Conservationist who always needs a favour.
3. Iggadon Lex – Tall wizard who regularly posts bulletins about national monster attacks.
4. Callisto Jamil – Overconfident breeder of wolves, hyenas, cayotes and foxes.
5. Para Tiwana – Panicky owner of a volunteer-run vet surgery.
6. Raurus Flyn – Short with bulbous eyes; runs a network of messenger pigeon coops.
7. Galasa Drewin – Miserable stable owner who facilitates illegal horse races.
8. Oianos Sajeed – Leader of an elf clan who live in the trees. Provides shelter to honest folk.

ROGUES & LAWBREAKERS

A life on the run with a few close friends can make a party as thick as thieves. Will your character steal the hearts of the people around them, or live out their days in the kingdom's darkest dungeon? This chapter is dedicated to giving unique quirks, apparel and items to your new rogue – giving them the best chance of escaping the law!

Backstory Inspiration

Use the tables in this book to create imaginative characters with unique backstories, inspired by the locations and lore within your game's setting. You can use this rogue's description as inspiration for your own, a guide to structuring backstories, or a fully-usable character for your next game!

Magwytch Trumm

When Magwytch Trumm was a young man, he was indoctrinated into a thieves' guild known as the Honourable Collectors. This grandiose name was an ironic description for a gang of violent robbers run by four siblings without a single shred of morality to share between them.

Magwytch was recruited into the gang by the youngest brother, a spindly and uncaring figure known to all as The Stork. He once sent Magwytch to rob a campsite, even after reconnaissance had shown it was occupied by a group of heavily armed trolls. Magwytch barely escaped with his life, but all the so-called 'Honourable' Collectors cared about was that he had failed to leave behind a strip of their signature scarlet fabric as a calling card.

Furious, Magwytch left the guild. He realised he needed to find a new gang, preferably an adventuring party he could manipulate into helping him with his criminal activities. His favourite con involves strolling into a busy market and flamboyantly introducing himself as Dr Vertillion, purveyor of Miracle Hair Tonic. Magwytch ensures he looks the part by combing thick, black hair grease through his hair and reversing his grey cape to display its vivid-pink silk lining. The tonic he sells is actually stagnant pond water, but his claims that he would be completely bald without it are generally persuasive enough to earn him some silver.

Magwytch is on the lookout for individuals who can help him to carry out increasingly more elaborate plots and schemes. Ideally, any future allies would also have healthy heads of hair, but Magwytch is willing to be flexible. He can always find something else to use to his advantage.

The words in bold are parts of the backstory taken from the random tables within this book.

Origins and Goals

This table generates past events in your character's life, and determines what motivated them to choose their adventuring path. You can use each entry as it is, or to inspire a brand new story!

Why did you become an adventurer?

1. You once broke into a tomb but left the treasure, the real thrill was disarming all the traps. Your fun ended however, when you touched a cursed object in the tomb – now you're looking for magical advice.
2. After some reconnaissance you robbed a group of trolls, but barely escaped with your life. That's when you realised you needed an adventuring party to help you with your elaborate plots and schemes.
3. You were exiled from your thieves' guild for upsetting the guild boss, your father, by stealing a hefty sum. You owe a vast amount to an evil wizard, and you are looking for a way to clear your debts.
4. You spent 1d20 years in jail; while locked away, you learnt new thievery techniques and skills. Now you're free once more, you want to scout the route used to transport kingdom taxes in preparation for the heist of the century.
5. Born into an infamous family of assassins, you ran away to seek a more peaceful life. You are now applying your unique skills to stop crime, not take part in it, much to your family's disdain.
6. You spent a few years as a shoemaker's apprentice, but you recently quit. Your family are desperate to move out of the poorest part of town, so you decided to put your agile fingers to lucrative forgery and pickpocketing instead.
7. You work as a teller at a local bank. During a shift, you found an artefact in a vault that was clearly stolen from a tribe; you aren't sure why, but you feel compelled to seek out its rightful owners and return it.
8. Once the founder of an infamous thieves' guild, you faked your own death and settled down. You complete noticeboard contracts now and then to keep your coffers full of coin.

Appearance and Items

Distinctive features

1. A row of tiny symbols is inked on each of your fingers.
2. You have one jade tooth. It replaced one knocked out during a tavern brawl.
3. Your rigid stance and neat hair make you look like a soldier.
4. You wear a tall top hat. The flat top is detaching from the sides and flaps in the wind.
5. A pearl hangs from your left ear, an onyx from your right.
6. A burn circles your wrist, received as punishment for stealing from a fey creature.
7. Troubled sleep has created dark shadows under your eyes.
8. A deep, narrow scar circles around the top of your head.
9. A simple octagonal brooch identifies you as a member of a notable and influential guild.
10. One of your eyes is covered by a soldered metal plate.

1d10

Criminal clothing

1. Short cape with a grey exterior; its vivid-pink lining contrasts your otherwise black outfit.
2. Old leather jacket covered with pins collected on your travels.
3. Emerald-green, velvet poncho stolen from a fashion show.
4. Long coat with many hidden pockets and a high collar that conceals your face.
5. Thick woollen top and heavy rimmed spectacles.
6. A ripped overcoat; impeccable stitching shows its high quality.
7. Snug waistcoat covers a sheer shirt with billowing sleeves.
8. Lightweight, fabric trousers and a simple vest are great for blending in with villagers.
9. Low-heeled, leather boots with bronze spurs and a wide ten-gallon hat.
10. Smartly tailored formalwear with a subtle plaid pattern.

1d10

Randall Portoni - rportoni@yahoo.com

Suspicious weapons

1. Hand crossbow; a "property of the crown" marking has been crudely scratched out.
2. Exquisite scimitar with a silver hilt encrusted with six jewels.
3. Brass knuckles, engraved with braids and sailing knots.
4. Long, extremely narrow dagger nicknamed 'The Skewer'.
5. Pair of throwing knives bought cheaply from a bankrupt circus.
6. Mace with a hooked handle that doubles as a crowbar.
7. Perfectly balanced rapier stolen from a blacksmith.
8. Amateurish shortbow that requires near constant repairs.
9. Poorly-kept shortsword with a rusty, bent, chipped and scratched blade.
10. Barber's folding razor blade with an ebony handle.

1d10

Pocketed trinkets

1. Heavy, brass letter seal.
2. Comb and pot of hair grease.
3. Jeweller's magnifying glass.
4. Fire-damaged postcard.
5. Sweets stored in a tinderbox.
6. Handful of peculiar buttons.
7. Seven magpie feathers.
8. Handle of a carriage door.
9. Pouch of expensive tea leaves.
10. Smashed, golden hourglass.

1d10

Deceitful items

1. Retractable dagger prop.
2. Fake teeth with long canines.
3. Deck of marked playing cards.
4. Forged judge's pardon.
5. Purse full of counterfeit gold.
6. Salt shaped like sugar cubes.
7. Fake healer's qualifications.
8. Lifelike wooden scorpion.
9. Priest's robes and holy book.
10. "Danger: No Entry" sign.

1d10

Paisley is the new black

Your rogue character, more than any other, will rely on their ability to move stealthily in the shadows. But that shouldn't mean they have to dress top-to-toe in black! Don't be afraid to add some flamboyant details to your appearance; you can always cover up with a dark cloak if the situation requires...

Randall Portoni - rportoni@yahoo.com

Magical Equipment

Illicit magic weapons

1. Twisted, ivory rapier that can shrink to be worn as an earring.
2. Crystal shuriken that vibrates when it hits a target, affecting the balance of anyone nearby.
3. Serrated, jade dagger that cuts easily through metal chains.
4. Old, rusty axe that emits a loud ear-piercing noise when spun.
5. Cutlass with a barnacled hilt, its blade is coated with paralysing jellyfish venom.
6. Shadowy sword that can age anyone it cuts by 1d4 years.
7. Alabaster shortbow, its radiant arrows pierce through targets in a straight line.
8. Soft, warm crossbow bolts that dispel any basic magic affecting a target that they hit.
9. Slingshot that teleports the user to where its ammo lands.
10. Raven-feathered club that can alter a target's memory.

1d10

Contraband magic items

1. Handheld mirror that ignores illusions or magical disguises.
2. Gloves that mimic the actions of your hands for ten minutes after they are taken off.
3. Platinum coin; returns to your purse at the end of each day.
4. Black ribbon; when tied onto a door handle, the lock cannot be unlocked by any means.
5. Retractable telescope that can see through a wall or barrier.
6. Compass in a copper box that points to diamonds, not north.
7. Jumbo gold coin; once a day, it can be flipped to find out if a statement is true or false.
8. Disguised lock-picking tools that, to anyone else, appear to be a fine, silver cutlery set.
9. Matching buttons that glow when near to each other.
10. Wooden spectacles that make the wearer look old.

Scams and Cons

Is your character in need of some quick cash? Try your luck at one of the cons below – you might scam your way to some easy gold. Make sure you have a plan for a quick getaway if things go wrong!

Illegal ideas

1. Sell an amulet that you claim can let you see future events. Bluff the demo by setting up a 'future event' in advance.
2. Pose as a tourist looking to explore historical sites. Ask for a tour of a secure area, then return later to rob the contents.
3. Bottle pond water and sell it as a miracle hair tonic. Use a real product to make your hair look convincingly luscious.
4. Tell someone they are being followed by another person from your party. Offer a day's protection for a fee.
5. Visit local vendors, claiming to be an influential bard who publishes reviews. Ask for free items in return for exposure.
6. Try on multiple rings in a jewellery shop, then create an excuse for you to evacuate. Discard all but one of them.
7. Use a friend's magic item as the grand prize in a raffle. Make sure the draw is rigged for them to win it back.
8. Loudly discuss how sad you are to be missing a fancy, upcoming event. Accept any offers to buy your fake invite.

1d8

The scam is called...

1. The Quick	1. Weasel.
2. My Hat Is a	2. Souvenir.
3. The King's	3. Dragon.
4. Secret	4. Parrot.
5. My Uncivil	5. Corset.
6. Grandma's	6. Navigator.

1d6

You hope to gain...

1. fashionable jewellery to wear.
2. enough coin to retire on.
3. a spot on the bounty board.
4. money to donate to the poor.
5. an adrenaline rush.
6. your sweetheart's affection.

Thieves' Guilds

Aligning with a guild can provide a thief with information, protection, access to safe houses and a market for stolen goods. In return, they must ensure the guild always gets a healthy share of the loot.

Guild names

1. The City	1. Syndicate
2. Nimble	2. Bandits
3. The Royal	3. Jackals
4. The Sworn	4. Enigmas
5. Lightfoot	5. Moons
6. Honourable	6. Locksmiths
7. The Dawn	7. Artisans
8. The Twelve	8. Collectors
9. Illicit	9. Sprites
10. Silver	10. Magpies

2d10

Secret passwords

1. Spring brings strange sounds.
2. Alas, four friends fell foul.
3. My mother made fine wine.
4. What price is venison today?
5. Better than a poison picnic.
6. Elves belch loudest at noon.
7. Tell no tales of the tree-tops.
8. The moon shines on merfolk.
9. A horse has eaten my pearls.
10. Bards steal and thieves sing.

1d10

Calling cards

1. Dusting of fine desert sand, undisturbed by footprints.

2. Bronze coin with the guild's recognisable crest on one side.

3. Shard of broken mirror or pottery, often taken from a previous crime.

4. Strip of scarlet fabric tied in a conspicuous location, such as the door knocker.

5. Lit, smoky incense that smells of pine and burning wood.

6. Traditionally, a loaf of bread. But, in practice, any type of baked goods.

7. Three simple stars scratched onto a nearby wall.

8. Bird's feather – established guild members have a signature species that they use.

1d8

Randall Portoni - rportoni@yahoo.com

Safe Houses

1. A stone cellar with no windows and a ceiling so low you can't stand upright, this isn't the most comfortable of hideouts. Thirty candles light the room, and kegs and crates make for furniture.

2. Your fellow thieves have decorated the rafters of this windmill's attic with trinkets from their past crimes. A heavy chest sits over the trapdoor, so members need to use the windmill's sails to lift them from the ground to a small skylight in the roof.

3. This dark, damp smugglers' cave is only accessible from the beach at low tide. Anyone attempting to find their way here during a high tide would have to squeeze through a maze of tight tunnels.

4. What better way to hide stolen goods than leaving them out on display? Using the cluttered back room of a busy antiques shop as a hideout helps the guild hide in plain sight.

5. Camouflaged in the boughs of a great oak is a very cosy hideaway. Somewhere between a cabin and a treehouse, this safe space is part of a network of hidden locations maintained by the guild.

6. The guild pays a few coins a month for the use of a spacious outbuilding on a largely derelict farm. The farmers are a pair of crotchety twins who are too busy bickering to pay attention to who comes and goes.

7. A former merchant ship has been transformed into the guild's centre of operations. Thieves can gather to eat, drink, rest and plot in its cabins. It rarely docks in one spot for long.

8. The profits of the guild's misdeeds have helped furnish this secluded and luxurious manor house. When you are in residence, your every need is catered for by a team of loyal and discreet servants and kitchen staff.

Friends and Enemies

Roll on these tables to create a network of shady individuals your character has previously come into contact with. Who introduced them to a life of crime? Who will help your character and who must they be careful to avoid?

Criminal characters

1. Ivan Siedle – A humourless guild treasurer with pale skin.
2. Cerberus Bizeveron – Portly ambassador who runs a large network of assassins.
3. Retia Lux – An obsessive collector of rare items who has piercing yellow eyes.
4. The Stork – A spindly figure responsible for nurturing many young thieves.
5. Krissil Fresting – Physically unassuming; uses bribery and corruption to grow their wealth.
6. Deni Moray – Paranoid; has faked their own death, twice.
7. Almz Zaré – Not easily ruffled, their attitude is as smooth and stylish as their attire.
8. Matteo D'Silvestri – Leads a group of old bandits. Has a resemblance to the monarch.

1d8

Useful informants

1. Alvaro Marquina – Royal tax collector known to be corrupt. Wears large, thick spectacles.
2. Jinnz Satoo – Runs a museum of collectable antiques with their ten grandchildren.
3. Phero Baronne – Head of town security who suffers from pox.
4. Ol' Pat – A tavern regular with a robust appetite for meat, mead and local gossip.
5. Gules Parelless – Renowned sports superstar and athlete. Can outrun most guards.
6. Briars Redbluff – Methodical and loyal pyrotechnician.
7. Skender Knott – A daring tomb raider who tries out new catchphrases now and then.
8. Gabbí - A gangly teenage pickpocket who resents any assistance from grown-ups.

Soluna Valencis

Many years ago, there was an almighty tempest that covered the city of Talaxis in dark clouds. Everyone who could hide away did so, bolting their doors and boarding up their windows to protect their families. Soluna was a street orphan at the time, and so had nowhere to shelter from the heavy storm. That night, whether by freak occurrence or the unknowable will of the gods, she was struck by a powerful bolt of magical lightning. Near death, but still breathing, she was found and taken in by a woman named Dr. Valencis, a mage and expert on magical oddities who had been studying the strange storm that night.

Soluna displayed odd powers in the subsequent days, and received strange visions of a writhing creature whenever she slept. Fascinated and empathetic, Dr. Valencis allowed Soluna to stay with her, and in the years that followed eventually became an adoptive mother to her.

At the age of twenty, Soluna has decided to set off and find the creature who permanently plagues her rest. A far cry from the scruffy child she once was, she now wears her hair in a spiky style and wears blue, linen robes around her to mimic the lightning storm and electrical powers that she has now learnt to control.

Dr. Valencis' research on the creature suggests that it could be a draconic entity that likely lives underground near a volcano; it isn't much to go on, but Soluna feels compelled to seek out this creature with whom she seems to be linked. After saying goodbye to her mother, friends and hometown of Talaxis, Soluna set off in search of answers. She travels from region to region, taking on simple work to fund her investigation.

The words in bold are parts of the backstory taken from the random tables within this book.

Origins and Goals

This table generates past events in your character's life, and determines what motivated them to choose their adventuring path. You can use each entry as it is, or to inspire a brand new story!

Why did you become an adventurer?

1. At age ten, you displayed odd powers and received visions of a writhing creature. You were put in the care of a mage, who helped to control your abilities. Now you hope to find this creature with which you seem to be linked.
2. Your whole family are sorcerers with their own unique powers. Your great-great-grandmother magically sealed and hid a box before she passed away. Now the irregular heirloom is yours, you must find a way to open it.
3. As a soldier, you haven't told anyone about your magic, and only use it when you have to. You are working to free your framed parent from prison and you know revealing your powers will add to their woes.
4. You enjoy causing mischief with your powers, working as a ghost in a fake haunted house. You have entrepreneurial goals however, and are saving up money to start the world's first magical talent competition.
5. Not understanding your gift, you joined a gang of magic marauders who robbed and cheated others. You quit when you learned the dark truth that the leader was a slaver, you are now working to bring them to justice.
6. You were cast out of your town after developing powers and causing a great catastrophe. Years later, you are plucking up the courage to go back to your home to make peace and help them rebuild.
7. Your new magical gifts only helped your lengthy career as a charlatan street vendor. Now, with pockets lined with gold, you want to cross 'see a unicorn' and 'ride a hippogriff' off your six-page bucket list.
8. Chunks of a purple asteroid that fell to earth seem to heighten your odd abilities. You are travelling the world to collect more pieces of this mysterious meteor, learning more about it along the way.

Appearance and Items

Distinctive features

1. Horned protrusions line your forearms and shoulders.
2. Your skin is slightly rubbery, and always moist; similar to that of an octopus or squid.
3. Your earrings and lip piercings are connected by tiny chains.
4. Many necklaces hang around your neck, each carries a unique and strange crystal.
5. Instead of nails, your fingers end in filed-down talons.
6. With waxes and sap, you have styled your hair into a spiky and striking style.
7. Your shadow seems to have a personality of its own.
8. The dazzling wig on your head is clearly well looked after.
9. One third of your arms and legs are silver, as if they have been dipped in metallic paint.
10. Chains of colourful flowers loop around your neck.

1d10

Remarkable garments

1. Blue and purple wraps mimic the colour of a lightning storm.
2. Robes covered in blue-green sequins give a fish scale look.
3. Matte, black gown with a bright-orange, volcanic mantle.
4. Flamboyant, magenta cape covering your otherwise drab and uninspiring outfit.
5. High-collared jacket made from viridian snake skin, with matching slippers.
6. The multicoloured paint splatters across this navy robe make it look like a night sky.
7. Oversized coat that lazily hangs over your shoulders.
8. National flag converted into a closely fitting, sleeveless outfit.
9. Baggy robes and a cape blow in the breeze behind you.
10. Leather trench coat and dirty trousers, both have pockets that are filled with trinkets.

Power Sources

Magic runs in a sorcerer's veins, waiting to be tapped into; this magic may have chosen your character, or could have been a cosmic accident. Use this table to discern where your reservoir of power comes from.

You gained your powers when...

1. you drank water from a spring that flows from the fey realm.
2. your parents made a one-sided deal with a hag so they could conceive you.
3. you were abducted in the night by a flying ship covered in flashing lanterns.
4. a powerful, pre-eminent pocket watch came into your possession by chance.
5. an aurora covered the sky at the moment you were born.
6. you met a divine angel and they gave you their blessing.
7. you accidentally walked into a cavern that was actually a dormant magical repository.
8. a family of magical drakes took an interest in you after you helped save their lives.
9. you wandered too far in your dreams at night. It took you a year to escape the shadows.
10. your enchanted scientific project overcharged and blasted its energy into you.
11. you wished to be anything but normal when a shooting star sped across the sky.
12. you met a fiend, and they gave you powers just for fun.
13. a dragon who has been your family's friend for centuries chose you as their champion.
14. you were stood at specific coordinates when the stars, galaxies and planes aligned.
15. you opened a book that was locked away in a restricted and heavily guarded library.
16. magical lightning struck you during an almighty tempest.
17. a parasitic, alien creature hatched from a strange egg you found and bonded to you.
18. a cult sacrificed you during an eclipse. You came back to life, touched by the sun.
19. you followed folklore that turned out to be true.
20. a god chose you as their avatar, knowing the glorious future that lies ahead of you.

Wild Magic Incidents

As they tap into uncharted magical sources, sorcerers can be prone to overloading themselves with arcane energy. Roll on the table below to find out what happens when their magic goes unexpectedly haywire!

Magical overload side effects

1d100
01	You turn into viscous slime, but reform over the next day.
02	Your skin ages and your hair grows rapidly. You become older by 1d6 years.
03	Lethal ice energy explodes out of you in a 20ft sphere.
04	Everyone within 40ft of you is teleported to be within 5ft of you, and set on fire.
05	You tear a hole in reality and summon a creature from another dimension.
06-08	In a puff of smoke, you polymorph into a chicken.
09-15	The colour around you becomes hyper-vivid, and flowing rainbows fill the air.
16-22	You discharge the magical surge into a person nearby in an arc of bright lightning.
23-29	The ground bubbles around you and your feet sink into it. You are trapped for 1 minute.
30-36	You screech in a discordant melody that seems to boost the strength of your allies.
37-43	The nearest beast to you transforms into a wild unicorn and runs away.
44-50	You blast a bright ray of light into the sky from your mouth.
51-57	You and your party are each encased by shimmering, impenetrable bubbles for the next 1d20 seconds.
58-64	Storm clouds gather above you and a heavy hailstorm begins to rain down.
65-71	Over the next four days you will grow a new barbed tail.
72-78	In a bright flash, you and your nearest ally swap locations, clothing and weapons.
79-85	As you let out an almighty sneeze, everyone within 40ft of you is covered in foam.
86-92	You immediately learn a new language, and enjoy using it.
93-99	A temporary clone of yourself appears next to you, and will serve you for a day.
100	1d6 rocks on the ground near you become diamonds.

WARLOCKS & SHAMANS

The benefits of a dark bargain are often outweighed by its grave toll, as many young warlocks soon discover. If you still decide to make a pact with an otherworldly entity despite this warning, then you'll need this chapter to provide you with the armour, magic and memories of your former life to cling onto when all seems lost.

Backstory Inspiration

Use the tables in this book to create imaginative characters with unique backstories, inspired by the locations and lore within your game's setting. You can use this warlock's description as inspiration for your own, a guide to structuring backstories, or a fully-usable character for your next game!

Magpie

Dr. Gryd Wuulf was a well-dressed researcher who worked at the Fortesque Wizarding Academy; he came from a prestigious medical family who gave him an excellent education, but was shunned when he chose the life of a teacher instead of a surgeon. To add to his woes, his recent thesis on "The Dark Pantheon" became infamous, making him the laughing stock amongst the staff in his school.

One evening, outside his home, Dr. Wuulf was stopped by a hooded man who seemed to know all about him. The man led him to meet a group called The Secret Scions, who were fellow scholars of the gods of The Dark Pantheon. They promised that, by dabbling in dark magic, Dr. Wuulf would have access to power and knowledge that far surpassed his school colleagues' wildest dreams. Jealous, bitter and eager to get a one-up on the rest of his wizarding school, Dr. Wuulf took them up on their offer.

He left the school after embarrassing the other teachers, and pledged allegiance to The Forgotten Prince, one of the pantheon's bizarre gods. As he developed his powers, the entity often left him letters under his pillow while he rested with instructions that he gladly executed with efficiency. He goes by the name of Magpie now and, along with his new friends, is seeking to destroy the Fortesque Wizarding Academy's public archive that is full of misinformation about his patron and its cabal. However, before he attacks the academy's library, Magpie is looking for opportunities to test his new abilities and further control the magic that has been freely given to him. He knows he will need to become more powerful if he has any chance of fulfilling The Forgotten Prince's desires.

The words in bold are parts of the backstory taken from the random tables within this book.

Origins and Goals

This table generates past events in your character's life, and determines what motivated them to choose their adventuring path. You can use each entry as it is, or to inspire a brand new story!

Why did you become an adventurer?

1. A group of friends dared you to perform the ritual that bonded you with your patron. Your life forever changed, you plan to confront each of them and make them understand exactly what they did to you.
2. You saved your patron from death, so they shared their power with you as a thank you. Now, you wish to write a book all about patrons, and are looking to interview other warlocks across the nation.
3. You dabbled with dark magic to try to get one-up on the rest of your wizarding school, but got more than you hoped for. You left the school, and are looking for opportunities to test your new abilities.
4. You never grew out of seeing and speaking to your imaginary friend – an otherworldly being. They want to be restored to their previous position of power among the gods; you trust them, so are trying to help in any way you can.
5. A despot ruled your town, so you sought out power to help those who were suffering. Your patron can dethrone the despot, but first they need access to seven arcane gems that will give them the boost in power they need.
6. The guardian who raised you and taught you magic was recently revealed to be an evil, supernatural creature in disguise. You need to become stronger so you can destroy them and win your freedom.
7. Dreams from your patron haunted your sleep as a child, but in adulthood they crept into your waking moments. You are looking for a deity who will help you to remove this otherworldly connection.
8. Your patron's previous pupil lied to get out of their service, and tricked you into servitude. With the power you now have, you made it your goal to thwart evil, and stop this magic from getting into the wrong hands.

WIZARDS & ENCHANTERS

The mysteries of the arcane are known to you, and the awe and wonder that others see in spellcasting you see as maths, equations and symbols; you are a wielder of reality itself. This chapter has all of the components that you need to summon a unique familiar, craft a fascinating spellbook, and cast formidable spells.

Backstory Inspiration

Use the tables in this book to create imaginative characters with unique backstories, inspired by the locations and lore within your game's setting. You can use this wizard's description as inspiration for your own, a guide to structuring backstories, or a fully-usable character for your next game!

Valentin Wao-Akua

The druids of the Spirit Forest have looked after their sacred ecosystem for generations; each child is raised to learn the forest's magic and given a specific purpose that they are to fulfil. It was happy-go-lucky Valentin's destiny to help the insects pollinate the flowers of the grove. There was one problem, Valentin suffered from hayfever, making the path set out before him difficult, despite his willingness to try. His family were incredibly supportive however, and allowed him to choose a different life and study magic away from the forest.

He took a transmutation course in the bustling city of Elderbridge and stayed with family friend Gilli Grogleek, a highly intelligent jeweller who specialised in diamonds and trinkets. The two got on very well, and Gilli became a mentor to the young Valentin; he also proved useful in procuring rare spell components that were critical to Valentin's exams, which he passed with flying colours.

Valentin visited his druidic family twice a year during the solstice festivals that took place in their grand underground spire, but decided to stay in Elderbridge with Gilli. He made a decent living selling unsolvable puzzle cubes in a small marquee outside Grogleek Goldsmiths.

After Gilli passed away, the jewellery shop closed down. Valentin stayed in his Elderbridge home for a few months with the company of his shaggy fox cub familiar, Autumn, until he felt like it was time to move on and look for a new family of sorts to travel alongside. He picked up his curved, silver-birch staff and Gilli's favourite knee-length, maroon robe and set off to find an adventure.

The words in bold are parts of the backstory taken from the random tables within this book.

Origins and Goals

This table generates past events in your character's life, and determines what motivated them to choose their adventuring path. You can use each entry as it is, or to inspire a brand new story!

Why did you become an adventurer?

1. You studied one of the stolen spellbooks that was fenced by your guild, and noticed with a few extra tricks you could earn more coin. Branding you a 'cheat', the thieves kicked you out and stole your spellbook. You are plotting to get it back.
2. Your family are all druids, but allergies and hayfever made following their path difficult. You chose a different life, and studied other magic. Now, you're looking for a new family of sorts to travel alongside.
3. A beggar taught you some basic spells within an obscure branch of magic after you showed them kindness. They proclaimed that one day you would become a master of the arcane arts.
4. Runes that your colleagues uncovered at a dig site led you to examine their sinister magic. Using their own power against them, you hope to root out all who practise this forbidden, necromantic magic.
5. To become more like the cool wizards in your storybooks, you bought a tome of simple spells. Since then, you have been collecting magical books, and one day you hope to open your own grand wizarding library.
6. All of your friends became sorcerers in their childhood, but you didn't get any powers. Jealousy led you to fervently study magic, so that one day you will be able to find them and show off your skills.
7. You lived as a brutal bounty hunter, but discovered magic later in life by taking night classes at a university. By learning time-based magic, you hope to one day undo the terrible events in your past.
8. Your guardian bet that every child has the capacity to learn magic, so they adopted you. You proved them right and, knowing this truth, you dream of opening up your own magic school to give every child the chance to harness the arcane.

Judging a book by its cover

Whether it be scholarly robes, a threadbare travelling cloak or the eccentric hat of a maverick magician, a wizard's external appearance can tell other characters something about them. The smallest detail can hide a clue to your wizard's academic affiliations or spellcasting specialities.

Magical Equipment

Spellbound magic weapons

1. Bottle of lightning that when opened zaps a nearby enemy.
2. Gnarled staff with a crescent gem; once a day it can shoot a beam of powerful moonlight.
3. Large staff in the shape of a key that can be used to unlock doors, or magically lock them.
4. Light crossbow that fires bolts of sticky plasma at its foes.
5. Icy wand that can summon thousands of sharp hailstones.
6. Pine staff that can turn nearby soil into dangerous quicksand.
7. Sickly-green orb that explodes on impact and discharges a torrent of highly corrosive acid.
8. Decayed staff that can leech life force from those around it.
9. Stone full of red transmutation energy; once discharged it can polymorph everyone nearby.
10. Silver-veined gloves that can blast arcs of white lightning.

1d10

Well-crafted magic items

1. Metallic star coin that can teleport the user 60ft away.
2. Music box that plays songs from its owner's memories.
3. Ceramic tiger figurine; when shattered, it summons a battle tiger to ride for the next hour.
4. Box with a coin hole in its top; it can turn a copper coin into a gold coin twice a day.
5. Coiled, brass ring that makes its wearer lucky.
6. Cloudy seeing stone that answers one question a day with 'yes', 'no' or 'unclear'.
7. Steel carafe with a limitless supply of exquisite red wine.
8. Ebony ring that can freeze a person in time for 1 minute.
9. Mirror that can be used to spy on an individual that the owner has previously met.
10. Blanket that stays warm and cosy despite the weather.

Spells and Spellbooks

A wizard is nothing without their spells! The tables below give you magic words to shout when you cast a spell, quirks for your trusty spellbooks, and also some slightly unorthodox ideas for storing your magic...

Magic words

1. Leviss tarsus maximi!
2. Haek cinthum dominatus!
3. Horologium vestus!
4. Namfoodle nackle!
5. Foetidum caprah!
6. Ost electrum crepitus!
7. Ergastulis dracones!
8. Alabastrites totalle!
9. Mittentes carmina magna!
10. Ignis autemmus umbra!

1d10

Spellbook quirks

1. Wrapped in fine velvet.
2. Bound with shark leather.
3. A rolled parchment scroll.
4. Engraved with bird designs.
5. Covered in strange glyphs.
6. Full of secret pockets.
7. Held together with string.
8. Covered in scratches.
9. Always wet to the touch.
10. Thrumming with energy.

1d10

Unconventional spellbooks

1. Your spells are written across your body using charmed ink.
2. Heavy, brimstone tablet with your spells chiselled into its fiery surface.
3. An old university textbook; vocal and somatic tutorials help you cast your spells.
4. A metallic conduit stores your power and expertise; you draw from it when you cast.
5. Each bead on your necklace has a spell inscribed onto it. On your touch, the spell is cast.
6. Your magical knowledge is held within your mystical pocket watch; only you can read it.
7. Glyphs and words stitched into your neatly folded robes help you keep track of your spells.
8. Each of your spells is stored on the faces of a puzzle cube.

Astonishing Abodes

1. Wooden steps from the beach lead deep underwater to the entry of a coral cave, protected by a giant sea anemone. The cave has been fully converted into a wondrous wizarding workstation.

2. Only the slate-roofed peak of this tower is visible from ground level, but it stretches deep under the earth. The walls are cold and covered with a thin layer of moss and spiders' webs. On the deepest level, the tower opens out into a chasm full of vibrant crystals.

3. This tall spire has many stone stairs, hallways and rooms; faint, floating orbs give the interiors a dull, purple glow. The smell of incense and the cosy soft furnishings make every room feel homely.

4. An obsidian monolith pierces the skyline; against the surrounding cornfields it is an eyesore. The monolith has no windows, but the interior is an illusory, tropical paradise made just for its owner.

5. A fortified castle makes up the central part of this structure. Four separate ramparted towers hang in the air ignoring gravity, each is connected to the castle with a rope bridge. The interior is decorated in a regal manner, with large flags adorning the many banquet halls.

6. Thick fog surrounds this seemingly deserted and decrepit shack, which can only be perceived by onlookers at midnight. Some say the screams that emanate from it are the resident wizard's weeping victims, while others are sure it's just a spell to keep visitors away.

7. The large, iron wheels of this two-storey house clatter as it travels along the road. It is much bigger on the inside and contains a library, training hall, spell component treasury and a bedroom fit for royalty.

8. The disguised entrance to this mighty oak tree opens to a spiral staircase skirting around a finely crafted room. Doors of every size lead to small rooms and high branches of this implausible tower.

OPEN GAME LICENSE Version 1.0a

The following text is the property of Wizards of the Coast, Inc. and is Copyright 2000 Wizards of the Coast, Inc ("Wizards"). All Rights Reserved.

1. Definitions: (a)"Contributors" means the copyright and/or trademark owners who have contributed Open Game Content; (b)"Derivative Material" means copyrighted material including derivative works and translations (including into other computer languages), potation, modification, correction, addition, extension, upgrade, improvement, compilation, abridgment or other form in which an existing work may be recast, transformed or adapted; (c) "Distribute" means to reproduce, license, rent, lease, sell, broadcast, publicly display, transmit or otherwise distribute; (d)"Open Game Content" means the game mechanic and includes the methods, procedures, processes and routines to the extent such content does not embody the Product Identity and is an enhancement over the prior art and any additional content clearly identified as Open Game Content by the Contributor, and means any work covered by this License, including translations and derivative works under copyright law, but specifically excludes Product Identity. (e) "Product Identity" means product and product line names, logos and identifying marks including trade dress; artifacts; creatures characters; stories, storylines, plots, thematic elements, dialogue, incidents, language, artwork, symbols, designs, depictions, likenesses, formats, poses, concepts, themes and graphic, photographic and other visual or audio representations; names and descriptions of characters, spells, enchantments, personalities, teams, personas, likenesses and special abilities; places, locations, environments, creatures, equipment, magical or supernatural abilities or effects, logos, symbols, or graphic designs; and any other trademark or registered trademark clearly identified as Product identity by the owner of the Product Identity, and which specifically excludes the Open Game Content; (f) "Trademark" means the logos, names, mark, sign, motto, designs that are used by a Contributor to identify itself or its products or the associated products contributed to the Open Game License by the Contributor (g) "Use", "Used" or "Using" means to use, Distribute, copy, edit, format, modify, translate and otherwise create Derivative Material of Open Game Content. (h) "You" or "Your" means the licensee in terms of this agreement.

2. The License: This License applies to any Open Game Content that contains a notice indicating that the Open Game Content may only be Used under and in terms of this License. You must affix such a notice to any Open Game Content that you Use. No terms may be added to or subtracted from this License except as described by the License itself. No other terms or conditions may be applied to any Open Game Content distributed using this License.

3.Offer and Acceptance: By Using the Open Game Content You indicate Your acceptance of the terms of this License.

4. Grant and Consideration: In consideration for agreeing to use this License, the Contributors grant You a perpetual, worldwide, royalty-free, nonexclusive license with the exact terms of this License to Use, the Open Game Content.

5.Representation of Authority to Contribute: If You are contributing original material as Open Game Content, You represent that Your Contributions are Your original creation and/or You have sufficient rights to grant the rights conveyed by this License.

6.Notice of License Copyright: You must update the COPYRIGHT NOTICE portion of this License to include the exact text of the COPYRIGHT NOTICE of any Open Game Content You are copying, modifying or distributing, and You must add the title, the copyright date, and the copyright holder's name to the COPYRIGHT NOTICE of any original Open Game Content you Distribute.

7. Use of Product Identity: You agree not to Use any Product Identity, including as an indication as to compatibility, except as expressly licensed in another, independent Agreement with the owner of each element of that Product Identity. You agree not to indicate compatibility or co-adaptability with any Trademark or Registered Trademark in conjunction with a work containing Open Game Content except as expressly licensed in another, independent Agreement with the owner of such Trademark or Registered Trademark. The use of any Product Identity in Open Game Content does not constitute a challenge to the ownership of that Product Identity. The owner of any Product Identity used in Open Game Content shall retain all rights, title and interest in and to that Product Identity.

8. Identification: If you distribute Open Game Content You must clearly indicate which portions of the work that you are distributing are Open Game Content.

9. Updating the License: Wizards or its designated Agents may publish updated versions of this License. You may use any authorized version of this License to copy, modify and distribute any Open Game Content originally distributed under any version of this License.

10. Copy of this License: You MUST include a copy of this License with every copy of the Open Game Content You Distribute.

11. Use of Contributor Credits: You may not market or advertise the Open Game Content using the name of any Contributor unless You have written permission from the Contributor to do so.

12. Inability to Comply: If it is impossible for You to comply with any of the terms of this License with respect to some or all of the Open Game Content due to statute, judicial order, or governmental regulation then You may not Use any Open Game Material so affected.

13. Termination: This License will terminate automatically if You fail to comply with all terms herein and fail to cure such breach within 30 days of becoming aware of the breach. All sublicenses shall survive the termination of this License.

14. Reformation: If any provision of this License is held to be unenforceable, such provision shall be reformed only to the extent necessary to make it enforceable.
